Shipments Of Food May Start Today

Dunklin Residents Get Relief After Hard Hit by Drought

KENNETT, Mo., Feb. 6 (AP)—The first shipment of food is expected to reach here tomorrow in the emergency food relief program set up to feed some 4,00 farm laborers put out of work by drought conditions in this Southeast Missouri area.

The farm laborers, ordinarily in the midst of harvesting a cotton crop during this time of the year, were laid off when the harvest was shortened by the weather. Without work they have been without money to buy food.

State agencies have stepped in to help local agencies in the relief program. Proctor N. Carter, Missouri welfare director, located 12,000 cans of surplus beef at a state snitorium and directed the meat to the hungry laborers andtheir families.

The Dunklin County Food Emergency Committee, hastily organized this week after the county court revealed the plight of many farm workers, sent trucks to the sanitorium, about 300 miles west of here, late today to pick up the meat. The trucks are expected back some time tomorrow.

Other trucks are to get surplus government cheese, butter and dried milk at St. Louis Monday.

More food will follow.

The worst cases already have been helped, the committee said, by money from people here, at St. Louis, Kansas City and Memphis, Tenn.

The final hurdle to the distribution problem was passed last night. Under U. S. Commodity Credit Corps. rules, a recognized welfare agency must certify to the needs of the people before surplus food cn be released.

The county welfare office didn't have enough workers to do the job. The Dunkin County Red Cross, however, took on the work despite objections from a midwest area Red Cross representative.

Charles O. Burkett of St. Louis, the representative, said it was against Red Cross policy to become a certifying agency where government grants of food or money were involved.

Kennett Mayor L. A. Pickard replied the Red Cross would help if a cyclone or flood hit here, and that this was the same type of emergency.

The hardest hit area is in the south, near the Arkansas border. The exact number of needy people isn't known. That's what the local Red Cross will find out tomorrow and Monday.

Those wanting food will register with the Red Cross in the county's eight townships. The families will be checked quickly to determine exact needs. The county welfare office will eliminate names of anyone already getting state relife money. Then the food will be handed out.

The County Court said it had aid requests from 300 families and knew of at least that many more very short of food and money. Each family has three or more members.

Parents told of children staying home from school because they didn't have money for hot lunches served there. Others saved what money what money they had for food, and needed some help on clothing and shoes.

Most of those seeking help said their money ran out during January. They lived on credit as long as they could. Their food has been potatoes, bread and hominy.

What caused the economic crisis in the normally rich cotton country in Missouri's "bootheel?"

Although the grain farmer, dairyman and cattle raisers suffered serious damage from the continued drought, cotton growers had a record year, producing 428,000 bales in the area.

But excellent harvesting weather and increased use of mechanical cotton pickers brought misery to the farm laborers who counted on doing that work most of the winter.

With the cotton work finished and other jobs scarce, the families had no income. What they received during the summer soon ran out.

State and county officials are worried more about next year. The government allotment for cotton in 1954 in Missouri is 393,000 acres, 30 per cent less than last year.

That, plus further increase in the use of mechanical cotton pickers, will reduce the number of jobs even more. And the farm jobs that will be available won't open up until May.

Eight Die As Fire Guts 4-Room House

Father Escapes As Wife and Own Four Children Burn

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Feb. 6—(AP)—Suffocation took the lives of eight persons in a fire that destroyed a four-room home here early today, the coroner said.

The coroner, Dr. E. Allen Pickens, said an autopsy on one body and examinations of the others disclosed the cause of death. An inquest was set for Wednesday, 7 p. m.

The victims included seven children and the mother of four of them.

John Lillard, 28, the father of four of the children burned to death, escaped from the blazing home but suffered severe burns on his hands, arms and head.

He was found clad only in a shirt and shorts, wandering around the house and shouting, "My God, my family is in there."

Lillard said at first his wife had awakened him but he did not know how he managed to escape.

Questioned by detectives and newsmen at a hospital late today, he said he tried to get out the front door of the living room but could not get it open. He then went to the back bedroom and jumped through a window with a plastic covering. He said ht lost sight of his wife after she awakened him.

His condition was considered satisfactory.

The two adults and seven children were all in the two bedrooms except a 4-year-old child on a couch in the living room.

Those dead were Mrs. Evelyn Lillard, 30, four of her children ranging in age from five months to 6 years, and three children of Mrs. Dorothy Letterman who was at a Springfield hospital with a son—critically ill with a brain tumor. The son, Ronnie Gene, was reported a little improved today.

One of the Lillard children, Mary Lee, 7, escaped the fire by being at the home of grandparents a block and a half away.

Dr. E. Allen Pickens, coroner of Greene County, ordered the inquest Wednesday and also an autopsy of some or all of the bodies. Part of one of the skulls was reported missing.

Police believed the fire may have started from an oil heting stove in the living room. The house was gutted by the fire but the walls and roof were still standing today.

Funeral services for Mrs. Lillard and her four children will be at the Klinger Funeral Home at 2 p. m. Monday. Services for the three Letterman children have not been set.

A neighbor, Floyd Jones, 29, said he broke two windows and entered the house calling for the children to come to him.

There was no screaming," Jones said, "but I could hear them running back and forth. Apparently they were so dazed they didn't know what was going on. I got hold of an arm but it jerked away. I grabbed another but couldn't hold it either. Then I had to get out."

The bodies of the mother and two children were found on a bed. One child was under the bed. Only one was near the window through which Jones entered.

Bricker Wants Senate Vote On Proposal

Asks Vote Before Talking Further About Compromise

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 (AP)—Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) said today the Senate will have to vote up or down his newest proposal for limiting treaty-making powers before he will be willing to talk further about a compromise.

Bricker announced he is going to Florida for his first vacation in five years while the Senate marks time next week and other Republicans address Lincoln Day dinners across the nation.

"I want the Senate to vote up or down my proposition," Bricker said in an interview. "There is no use of having any more talk of compromise until we find out where we stand."

Bricker's latest proposal would permit a treaty or international agreement to become effective as internal law only by act of Congress, or if the Senate by a two thirds vote says it should become effective.

Sen. Knowland of California, the GOP floor leader, has called this unacceptable. But, unlike Bricker, he said in an interview that he feels that acceptable substitute language may be found before the Senate starts voting, the week of Feb. 15, on amendments to the pending Bricker proposal.

Observing that there is general agreement in the Senate over proposals to state that treaties must conform to the constitution, Knowland said the big issue now is how to deal with executive agreements with foreign nations.

Sen. George (D-Ga), who has offered his own version as a substitute for the Bricker proposal, has contended that executive agreements over which Congress has no control now are supplanting treaties and being upheld by the courts as the supreme law of the land.

Knowland said the search will continue for language acceptable to the White House and to most factions in the Senate bearing on that situation.

"There is no language presently before us on which an agreement can be reached on this issue," he said. "But I don't think it is inconceivable that language can be found that would be acceptable."

Car Is Wrecked, Driver Unknown

A DeSoto sedan believed to belong to Dave Sommers, 1308 South Lamine, was badly wrecked about 10 p.m. Saturday when it skidded and flipped over on the Georgetown road in front of Buena Vista. A license sticker on the car had been issued to Sommers according to a license receipt found in the car.

F. H. Wagner of Georgetown came upon the scene and when others who had arrived were unable to extract a man in the car, he drove to the Sedalia Police station nd notified them of the accident and the man being pinned in the vehicle.

Due to the extreme emergency one of Sedalia's Patrol cars was sent to the scene while the State Patrol was being notified. However just before they arrived tht man was freed and was taken in another automobile.

It was not known whetheer the driver of the car was injured.

The car was being driven south on he rotad and the driver apparantly lost control when it went over a rise in the road ,over a culvert. The car skidded, went sideways off the road, nosed over on its top and against a telephone pole.

American Defense Abroad

US Will Send B26 Bombers, Air Force Technicians to Aid France, Indochinese

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 (AP)—The United States has put into operation an emergency plan to help French and loyal Indochinese forces turn back what is regarded here as the most threatening Red offensive of the eight-year-old Indochina War.

The Defense Department announced today it is sending some more B26 bombers and about 200 more Air Force ground crew technicians to help the French and Vietnam forces fighting the Communists there.

In addition, the flow of American military supplies has been stepped up so critically needed equipment can move to the battlefront in time to help beat back the mounting Red drive, particularly in Laos.

Substantial numbers of big C119 Flying Boxcars have been "loaned" to the French to speed supplies to threatened areas.

The Defense Department's announcement said:

"The success of the Franco-Vietnamese forces in the war in Indochina is important not only to France and the Associated States, but to the United States and the whole free world."

The department did not disclose the number of B26 light bombers immediately involved, but it was understood to be small, about 10. They will be flown by French crews, and the department noted that "this represents an immediate need for trained mechanics."

Approximately 125 technicians are already on the scene, instructing the French and Vietnanese in maintenance operations for various types of U. S. aircraft, and they will be augmented by about 200 more technical advisers and expert mechanics. They work in rear areas and do not take part in combat operations.

The decision to send mechanics and ground crews, approved by top Eisenhower administration leaders, represents a far-reaching step. Similar action was taken secretly, but on a much smaller scale, last May when a surprise Communist invasion of Laos posed a serious problem to the French.

American military leaders are reported confident the French and loyal Vietnam and Laotian armies can contain the present Communist drive. The big aim is to hold the Laotian capital of Luang Prubang.

Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chief of staff, reviewed the Indochina military picture and told of American aid moves at a closed meeting yesterday of the Senate Armed Services Committee. Several senators were reported to have questioned Radford sharply about the plan.

Radford is understood to be dissatisfied with the rate of which the French are training native troops. But, as far as can be learned, he has not suggested that an American training mission be sent to take over this task. There is reason to believe that under present conditions the French would oppose any such move.

Senator Says GOPs Trying To 'Hamstring' Eisenhower

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6—(AP)—Shock troops probed cautiously for weak spots in the quickening battle of Capitol Hill this week and in the distance the rumble of heavy artillery was growing louder.

Nobody doubted that all thunderation would break out soon.

At advance headquarters, however, commanders in both camps had a secret worry: It was extremely difficult sometimes, in the smoky turmoil, to distinguish friend from foe.

Sentry: "Halt! Who goes there?"

Voice: "Democrat."

Sentry: "Advance, Democrat, and give the password."

Voice: "I like Ike."

Sentry: "Okay. For a minute, there, I could have sworn you were a Republican—"

Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark) pointed up the confusion when he told the Senate it was witnessing the "unbelievable spectacle" of Republicans attempting to "hamstring" their own President in his conduct of foreign affairs via the row over the Bricker amendment.

Attacking the proposed constitutional amendment by Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio)—which would give Congress a tight rein over the President's treaty-making powers—Fulbright told the Senate:

"It was never intended by the founding fathers that the President of the United States should be a ventriloquist's dummy sitting on the lap of the Congress."

Bricker came right back. All in the world he was trying to do, he said, was to save American liberties from being taken away via the treaty route or by the edicts of some international organization.

He said people who want "supranational government," in which the United States would become a "mere province," are sparking the opposition to his amendment. And among them he named John W. Davis, New York lawyer who ran for President on the Democratic ticket back in 1924.

Not all Democrats were fighting Bricker, of course, and many Republicans were against his amendment. For example, Sen. Wiley (R-Wis) fought it tooth and nail, and at the end of the week took comfort in the fact that, in its original form, it appeared dead.

All week long, Senate Republican Leader Knowland of California and other GOP chieftains trudged back and forth between the White House and Capitol Hill, seeking to work out an acceptable compromise.

Eisenhower was already on record as "unalterably opposed to the Bricker amendment, as written. And at his midweek news conference, Gen. Ike said he would not retreat one bit, one word, in opposing any attempt to change the traditional balance of power among the legislative, executive and judicial branches of the government.

Molotov Revives Demand

Soviet Ignores 3 Compromise 'Feelers' As Big Four Ends 2nd Fruitless Week

BERLIN, Feb. 6 (AP)—Soviet Russia ignored three compromise feelers by the West on German unification today but refused to let the Berlin conference shelve this deadlocked question to take up the Austrian independence treaty.

Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov wound up the second fruitless week of the Big Four parley by reviving last year's Soviet demand on the Western powers to cut their occupation costs.

It seemed another grandstand play by the shrewd Russian, who has showered his diplomatic opposition with unacceptable proposals that made Communist headlines but brought the conference no closer to a solution on Germany.

French Foreign Minister Bidault, again the West's vanguard, offered two concessions to the Soviet viewpoint in a last ditch try to start German unification rolling.

He dropped the idea of Big Four supervision of all German elections—hotly attacked by Molotov—and suggested instead that supervisory commissions to protect the voters' liberties be made up of one West Germany, one East Germany and one neutral as an arbiter.

Bidault accepted the electoral law of the old Weimar Republic, which had received a few good words from Molotov as applicable in unification. The Communists liked this law because it permitted organizations as well as parties to put up candidates. Their organizations, such as the Women's League and Free German Youth, might thus get on the ballot.

Britain's Anthony Eden immediately followed up this French effort to soften the Russian stone wall on unification. He offered to extend the British-Soviet mutual defense treaty against German aggression. It was signed in 1943 and is due to expire in 1963.

"We in the United Kingdom for our part abide by our treaty with the Soviet Union," he said. "We should, I am sure, be ready to prolong it if Mr. Molotov feels that this would give added security to the Soviet Union. If there are any other ways in which we could help to resolve the Soviet Union's anxiety about its security, I have already said that we should be glad to consider them."

But Eden made it clear that the West will not compromise on two fundamentals for ending Germany's division: a free choice by Germans of their government, and a free choice by that government of its future alliances.

"We do not want an imposed settlement which would repeat the mistakes of the prewar years," the Briton asserted.

Molotov tossed out his demand for lower Allied occupation costs in West Germany after accusing the Western ministers of indicating here that the occupation "will go on for an indefinitely long period."

B. Bradley Began Printing Here, Has Completed 55 Years

A picture and story of Brooks Bradley, who has been in the printing business 55 years and for the past 18 years has printed the Christian College Microphone, was recently published in the college paper.

Born in Boone County, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Terry Bradley, he says: "I am a native of the state of Blackfoot, a portion of Boone County, which is an unreconstructed Rebel domination, having never been readmitted to the Union, and never will be, therefore has no senators and representatives in Congress."

He was a very small boy when the family, consisting of Brooks, Eula and Buford, moved to Sedalia. Maude, the youngest child, was added to the family after they came. They lived in the northeast part of town where he attended Northeast school, now Jefferson school, and later Summit school, now Washington. His father was a railroad man and his mother gave piano lessons.

The ambition to be printer began young with Brooks Bradley, who started out as a little youngster with a set of type. He was about nine years old and his one page paper told of happenings in the neighborhood and sold for a penny or so. When he would sell all the papers he could, then he would give the rest of them away.

He worked at his chosen trade in different printing companies in Sedalia during vacation and full time after finishing school. His real career as a printer started, however, in October 1898 at Columbia in the office of the Missouri Statesman. A small paper, the Christian College Chronicle, was printed in the same shop.

After several years there he came back to Sedalia and in January, 1914, accepted a position as foreman for the Boonville Advertiser. During the 55 years he has worked in seven states.

It was in October 1935 that he started printing the Microphone and has never missed an issue or been late with it but once. He has handled over a million copies during those years. Other help in the shop has done makeup, but no one has ever put a form on or a sheet through the press. As the final edition of the year is put out, he stays uhtil it is out, which is usually 5 a. m., in order for it to be delivered in time for the commencement program.

Asked by a Christian College student to what he attributed his success, Bradley answered: "Steady work, leaving liquor alone, and holding steadfast to the faith of my fathers."

At present Mr. Bradley is working on a book of memoirs covering these years, which he hopes to have completed by 1958, to round out 60 years. He has also printed two other booklets that he wrote and set the type by hand.

The only member of his family living is his sister, Maude, who is now Mrs. Findley and resides in Kansas City, Kas.

Brooks Bradley often comes back on visits to Sedalia, the last time in Nov. 1953, just before Thanksgiving, and with him were his wife, Ella, and his sister, Maude.

The Bradleys keep in touch with close Sedalia friends and former schoolmates, among whom are Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Withers, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Maroney and Mrs. Maud Horton.

Gets 9-Month Term For Posing As Officer

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Robert E. Wilson, 22, who admitted passing checks while posing as an Army lieutenant, was sentenced to serve nine months in a federal prison yesterday by Judge Albert A. Ridge.

Wilson pleaded guilty in U. S. District Court of passing a check for $40 at a Kansas City hotel. He also admitted he had passed 10 checks in Kansas.

Jail Is Too Creaky To Hold Its Two Special Prisoners

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The small town of Fossil, Ore., fears that its jail is so old and creaky that it won't hold a couple of Los Angeles prisoners.

The district attorney at Fossil, Robert B. Abrams, sent a written plea on the subject that was received by the Los Angeles County district attorney yesterday. It said in part:

"The jail is quite old and not too strongly constructed. About an hour's work on the walls would be sufficient for a prisoner to break out.

"So far, partly because of the cold weather we have been having, neither of the subjects has shown any interest in leaving. But the weather has moderated lately and I don't know how long it will last or that the subjects will not try to escape."

Dist Atty. S. Ernest Roll of Los Angeles County issued instructions for the immediate return of the prisoners. They are Virgil W. Haughland and Gerald A. Branson, wanted here on charges of conspiracy to commit petty theft.

"I just couldn't understand why!"

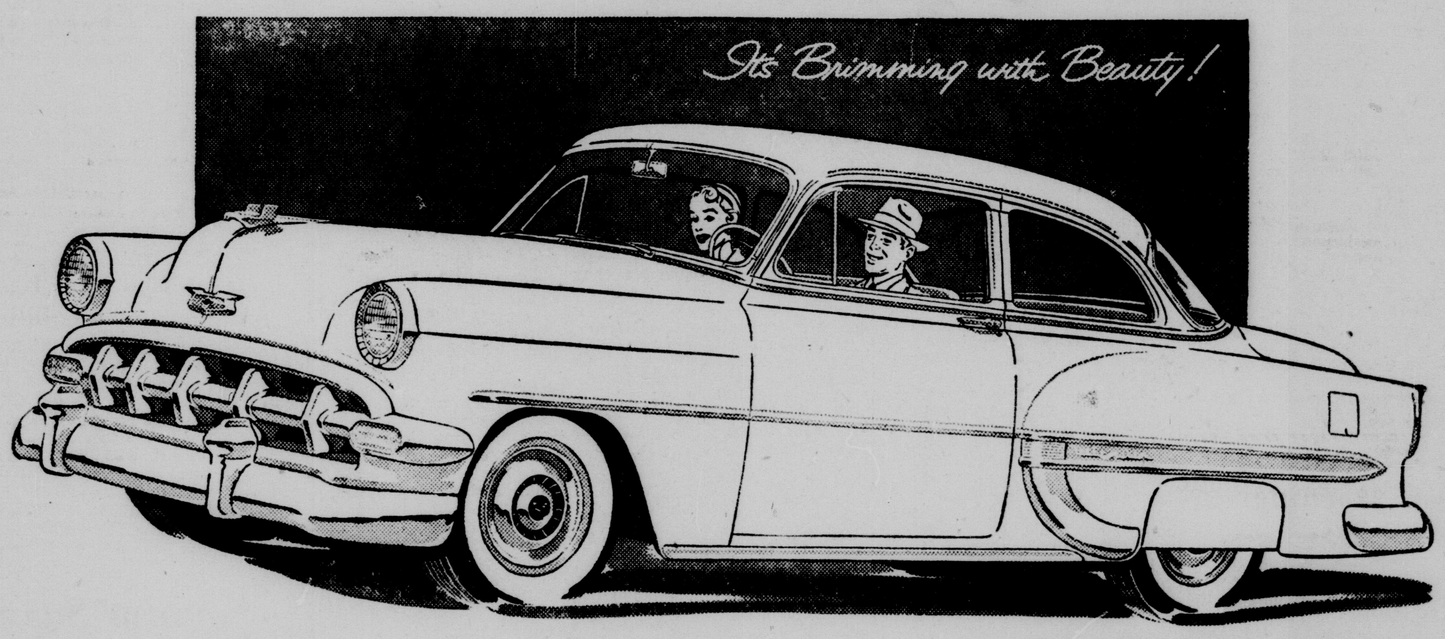

"I was sick! A new automatic washing machine! A new dishwasher! But... my wash didn't come out clean... the dishwasher wouldn't steam-dry! When the plumber* came to fix a drain I told him my troubles. 'It's your water heater,' he said, 'it can't heat fast enough for those new appliances. I'd advise an automatic Gas water heater.' It seems Gas is 3 times faster than any other all-automatic fuel... yet an automatic Gas heater is cheaper to buy, install, and run. WELL!" Wins Applause As Russian Communist

He has made a keen ear and a supple tongue into highly valuable —and sometimes amusing—assets in an acting career that has taken him halfway around the world and at last to the Broadway stage.

Astar is the rude, rasping Russian delegate to the U.N. in the Howard Lindsay-Russel Crouse hit "The Prescott Proposals." It's his local debut, but the nation has seen him in such movies as "The Robe," "Fort Ti" and "Sister Carrie."

He also has racked up such varied accomplishments as a one-man version of "Othello," delivered before 2,000 soldiers in the African desert; chanted Old Testament readings across Europe, and been the first Jew to play the blackamoor "Emperor Jones."

As always, however, New York theatergoers have greeted him as a brand new find.

"If I was an 18-year-old girl," says Astar of the sumptuous notices the local critics gave him, "I'd be a star now. But character actors have to keep working hard all the time."

A heavy-set man who slightly resembles a youthful John L. Lewis, Astar delivers a good chunk of his lengthy "Prescott" role in Russian and, it turns out, with considerably more humor for spectators than author-director Lindsay first intended.

To get the part, Astar acknowledged a speaking knowledge of Russian which he subsequently achieved by night school lessons and close attention to a tape recorder into which he had a Russian—"a White Russian"—read the Slavic lines.

"I always say I can speak a language when a director asks me," confides Astar. "Then I go to night school if I have to."

As a result, he can converse in eight languages and has a scraping acquaintance with several more.

"People who come from the Middle East as I do have a flair for languages," he says. "Where I was born in Jaffa, Palestine, one could hear 20 languages in five minutes."

On one occasion, with permission of U.N. officials, Astar rehearsed his "Prescott" speech about Korea from the podium of the Assembly chamber while a few startled visitors listened to the sudden diluge of Russian.

Astar's father, a shoe merchant, marked his oldest son for the medical profession and sent him to Berlin for study. There the youth decided to enter the theater instead and won a two-year state scholarship. In 1928, still a teen-ager, he played his first theater role.

Later he returned to Palestine, formed a repertory company and slowly but steadily built a reputation on the continent as a highly versatile actor.

Eventually he reached London, and after a 10-year wait came to this country in 1949 under the immigration quota.

The necessary waiting time done, Astar will apply for U.S. citizenship.

"It was a long, long dream," he says of his desire to come to America, "and it was worth all of the long wait."

He went to Hollywood without knowing anyone, he says, determinded to let his acting prove him. He wound up making 18 films.

In the process he picked up several intense impressions about Hollywood: that it's not artificial, only the publicity makes it seem so; that the place to see film players is in church on Sunday, not in night clubs; and that Marilyn Monroe is a serious young actress.

Astar, a happily married man for 17 years, says that since he met Marilyn "I've been going around giving the devil" to anybody who regards her as anything but an earnest young actress.

Astar, highly serious about acting, has a regard for writers and directors not usually expressed by performers.

"An actor must remember he's only the waiter, not the cook. If we actors fool around with roles, we may give service, but we don't provide food."

Another Sedalian Proves He, Too, Is a 'Waterwitcher'

It isn't everybody who can waterwitch, but Sedalia has another one who has an interesting story on the subject. He is Alvie Percy Williams, 1806 South Harrison. This gift of finding water veins by the means of a forked stick seems to run in families.

Mr. Williams said that his father was a big man, weighed about 212 pounds, and always used a peach tree limb to water witch. He could not hold the forked stick when he came to the spot where the water was below, it would twist down in spite of all the grip, and he had plenty, that he could get on it.

The son seemed to be just as capable of locating water as his fater. He moved to Sedalia and was living at 20th and Missouri. It was during World War I that he bought the property where he now resides and wanted a good bored well drilled before he built a barn wanting to find the place to drill he took the forked stick and walked all over the lot. There was only one place he could find water, and when he stepped at that particular spot he just could not hold that stick tight enough to keep it from twisting down.

He set a peg in the ground about two inches from the sidewalk in the back yard and put the center of the drill where the stick was. The driller told him he couldn't get the drill there for the walk, but Mr. Williams was so sure that he was right on where to drill that he told the driller to go ahead and tear up the walk, because that was where it must go.

They went down through 15 feet of soil and dirt, Mr. Williams said, hit solid rock, but the center of the drill hit a crevice in the rock and followed it all the way, 50 feet of solid rock. That made the well 65 feet deep. That was on Armistice Day that closed World War I, and he never has been out of water since the well was drilled.

Mr. Williams said he didn't know how forked sticks from other trees would work with him —he has never tried anything but a peach tree limb—but he can locate water with that and he has a good well to prove it.

Uhliks Begin A New Life In America

Editor's Note: Vaclav Uhlik, his family and four friends took a life or death chance one day last July. They piled into a patched up armored car in Czechoslovakia and smashed through the Iron Curtain to freedom. Here's the story of the Uhlik family, now busily founding a new life in Springfield, Mass.

By CORNELIUS F. HURLEY and LEONARD GIBLIN

And the Highland Cooperative Bank has opened four new savings accounts; for Vaclav Uhlik and friends.

What's news about that, you say? Happens every day.

And you're right, except for one thing.

Vaclav Uhlik, his 26-year-old wife and his friends are Czechs who smashed through the Iron Curtain to freedom in a patched-up armored car just six months ago.

Little Vaclav's starting to school, his mother's shopping, and the first tiny savings are measures of their progress in founding a new life in America. They give a hint of the freedom they have found, the hopes they have gained since they took a life or death chance and fled their Communist-ruled homeland last July.

Eight people squeezed aboard that rebuilt armored car for the dash across the border. There were Vaclav Uhlik, 32, a mechanic; his wife, Martha; their son, Vaclav Jr., 6; their daughter, Eva, 4; Joseph Pisarik, 42, another mechanic; Vaclav Krejcirik, 25, a tailor; Walter Hora, 25, also a mechanic and a Czech girl who had married an American Army sergeant and is now living in Iowa.

The seven now living in Springfield are under the protection of the American Heritage Foundation, which sponsors the Crusade for Freedom.

The men have no jobs yet. They are in the United States under visitors' permits and it will take an act of Congress to enable them to work here. But they have had offers and expect to be permitted to stay in America.

Meanwhile they gain some income from television and radio shows and from magazine articles. Emil Ransdorf, a Czech who came here in 1948 and serves as their interpreter, reports they are largely paying their way.

The American Heritage Foundation chose Springfield for the refugees' new home so they could be, as an official of the organization put it, "in a place where they can learn what America is."

The first assignment was to find them a home. The Foundation outlined its needs in the newspapers one day a week before Christmas. Twenty-four hours later, out of many offers, it had selected the big Dartmouth street home of Dr. Paul M. Limberi, former president of Springfield College, now secretary of the World Alliance of YMCA's at Geneva.

Furniture appeared as if by magic. The Salvation Army sent living and dining room sets. A hotel offered a stove. Dartmouth street residents pitched in and contributed double beds, blankets, a boy's bed, a radio.

Eleven - year - old Susie Witherspoon, who lives across the street, washed and ironed the clothes of one of her best dolls as a gift for Eva. Nine-year-olds Dick Peck and Johny Gamel showed up with a fire engine and trucks for Vaclav. An elderly couple sent a sled almost new.

An anonymous donor even ordered a television set installed. A church sewing group volunteered to make draperies.

Mrs. Oscar Gamble, who lives nearby took Mrs. Uhlik on her first shopping trip to the big new supermarket. She said Mrs. Uhlik was amazed at the acres of cars in the parking lot. When a fat turkey caught her eye, she slapped it and laughed in delight.

The crowning touch of neighborliness came Christmas Eve when a neighbor, an Episcopalian, stopped at the Catholic Uhliks and offered to take them to church. She waited until mass was over and then drove them home.

Between establishing a home, being interviewed again and again, and making recordings for Radio Free Europe and the Voice of America, the Uhliks and the friends who fled with them have been busier than ever before. But the warmth of their welcome has not escaped them.

As Uhlik put it through the interpreter:

"I have never been so sorry that I cannot speak English so that I can thank these people. When the story is told in Czechoslovakia by Radio Free Europe it will be so unbelievable people will call it propaganda."

Sabre Knights Demonstrate Air Precision

HAMILTON AIR FORCE BASE, Calif., Feb. 6 (AP)—Flying swept-wing F86 jet fighter planes, four young pilots of the 325th Fighter-Interceptor Squadron, known as the Sabre Knights, demonstrate precision flying at its best.

Leader of the team is Maj. Vincent Gordon, 37 - year - old commander of the 325th and veteran fighter pilot of World War II. Capt. Richard Hellwege, 26; Lt. Bruce Jones, 28; and Lt. Jim Low, also 28, complete the quartet.

Gordon, who originated the Sabre Knights, is sold on the formation flying the group specializes in, but not as a stunt.

"Formation flying," he says," stresses teamwork—the keynote of all aerial tactics."

The major tells you there's no danger in swooping low at 500 miles per hour, or flying wingtip to wingtip as though chained together in the sky. All you need is "know-how."

The Sabre Knights are craftsmen, not daredevils. They fly their breath-taking formations to demonstrate to fledgling fighter pilots the tricks of the trade that may pull them through aerial scraps in combat and to show the public what it's getting for defense dollars.

A favorite maneuver is the "orange blossom." In this one, the Knights climb vertically to 5,000 feet, break away in four different directions, go separately through a series of turns that resemble the letter "S", then converge in a diamond pattern to roar over the field.

Gordon has flown more than 1,000 hours in jets, is married and the father of a 5-year-old son. Lt. Low, who got his wings in 1951 and is credited with nine MIG kills in Korea, lives here at Hamilton with his wife Joan.

The left wing man, Dick Hellwege, was an Air Force enlisted man before he won his wings in 1948 and flew more than 100 missions in Korea. He also is married. Lt. Jones, the right wing man, joined the Air Force in 1943 at 17, but wasn't accepted for pilot training until after World War II. He won his wings in 1950 and flew ground support missions in Korea. He lives in Novato, Calif., with his wife and two daughters.

The wives may spend some anxious hours while their husbands are aloft. But as far as the Knights are concerned, what looks like brash flirting with death is only part of the business of being a fighter pilot.

TV Industry Still Debates Live vs. Film

NEW YORK, Feb. 6 (AP)—The television industry is still split on the live vs. film question.

Some in the industry contend you can get better programs by putting them on film, with retakes if there's a fluff or mistake. Others argue that a canned show never can capture the spontaneous sparkle of one that's telecast as it's performed.

Indications are that the trend toward film has been slowed or halted in recent months. Ross Reports on Television, New York industry information service, says its program analyses show no significant changes in the past year. The ratio currently is 20½ hours a week on film and 115½ live on network shows out of New York, including the major film shows photographed in Hollywood.

Meanwhile, some of the "pro-live" producers now are signing off their shows with the line "This show originated live from New York" or "—from Hollywood." While the film advocates are ready with arguments for their celluloid versions, the identification at the end of many recorded shows is an inconspicuous "This has been a mechanical reproduction."

Examples are Dinah Shore, ardent advocate of the live show, and Dennis Day, who favors the filmed form.

"I believe in live shows. I love a live performance," Miss Shore said the other day on a trip here from Hollywood to do two of her NBC-TV programs in color.

"It gives a performer a keyed-up excitement that's missing in films," she declared.

She contends that the viewer not only gets a better quality image on his screen and the satisfaction of knowing he's seeing it as it happens, but also gets a better performance from the entertainers.

Day, who came east from Hollywood a few days later on a tour for the Heart Fund, says it's the other way around with him on his NBC programs.

"I couldn't do the costume changes I do now unless I did my show on film," he related. "and if the show were live, and I had to run from one set to another in 30 seconds or less, I'd be out of breath when I got there and wouldn't be able to do a very good job on a song."

Day uses Groucho Marx's show as an example of a filmed show which he says couldn't be done live, pointing out that it consists of the choice portions of an hour and a half performance. He also notes that three of the 10 most popular shows, according to both the Nielsen and Trendex ratings, are on film—Lucy, Dragnet and Groucho. He says it isn't a question of whether they might be even more popular if they were live, but that they couldn't be done as well as if they were live.

On the other hand, the "pro-live" advocates emphasize that seven of the top 10 are live shows. Joan Caulfield of My Favorite Husband says that doing a show on film is "like telephoning it in or mailing it in" and that it loses something that a live show has. Jack Benny is among the strong pronents of live shows and does an occasional one on film reluctantly because of the pressure of doing both TV and radio.

ENJOY NEW COURSE—Green Ridge High School students Evelina Shipps, left, and Mary Anne Lewis enjoy the new, modern facilities of the home economics department, which was started only in 1952. There are now 30 girls enrolled, most of them members of the Future Homemakers of America.

Bus and Truck Assn. Backs a Speed Limit

Lee J. Sloan of St. Louis, president of the Missouri Bus and Truck Association, has announced that the association will support the schedule of reasonable speed limits recommended by Colonel Hugh Waggoner, Superintendent of the State Highway Patrol.

Col. Waggoner has recommended a 65 mile per hour limit for passenger vehicles, a 55 mile limit for busses and a 50 mile limit for all trucks, and a 45 mile limit for school buses. He has suggested that the Highway Department be given authority to establish lower limits in certain zoned areas.

HST Says Recession Has Already Spread To The City Streets

NEW YORK (AP)—Former President Harry S. Truman said last night that "The recession that started on the farms last spring has already spread to the city streets—and a depression would do likewise." He scoffed at the "miracles" he said were promised by the Republican party.

In a speech before the Americans for Democratic Action, Truman said, "I don't think there is any necessity for a depression."

"One thing is clear by now after a year of the Eisenhower administration," Truman said, "and that is the Republican party is not made up of miracle workers.

". . . I have been watching and waiting for those miracles to happen that we were promised back in 1952. But there is something wrong somewhere. There seems to be a slight delay in the miracle business."

Truman ripped into the present administration's income tax cut, terming it "a rich man's tax relief measure if I ever heard of one."

New First Aid Classes Being Planned for Spring, Summer

Michael Wolfel, chairman, of first aid, met with his instructors last Tuesday evening at the Red Cross office. Plans were made for the spring and early summer, with schedules for new classes laid out. Any individual, or any group, interested in first aid, is asked to call the Red Cross office, phone 618, for registration and any desired information.

The regular meeting of the Red Cross board of directors was held in the chapter office Thursday with J. H. Brunkhorst, chapter chairman, presiding.

In addition to routine business, plans were made for the coming Red Cross fund campaign, and the following report on home service activities was given to the board. In January there were 140 cases. Among the services rendered were verification of leave, hospitalization counseling in family and personal problems, burial allowance, grave markers, application for accrued amount and gratuity pay, insurance claims, compensation and pension for veterans and the dependents of deceased service men and social history. Seven death claims were handled during the month, four of these being Korean casualties. Each of these involve several distinct claims, often as many as five, and require many different types of supporting evidence, all of which is secured by the Red Cross.

Miss Eleanor Flynn, Red Cross field consultant in home service, will be in the chapter office on Friday and Saturday of this week, and will confer with Mrs. Herbert Seifert, chairman of home service, and Mrs. Fred Hulse, chairman of volunteer social welfare aides. The entire home service program will be discussed, and the extension of the present home service program.

PTA Council Has Founders' Day Luncheon

Sedalia PTA Council celebrated Founder's Day with a 1 p.m. luncheon Wednesday, Feb. 3, at the First Baptist Church. Mrs. John Loague, Founder's Day chairman, was in charge, assisted by her committee. Table decorations were carried out in the Founder's Day colors of yellow and blue and a large group of PTA members, school principals and guests enjoyed the meal.

A boys' quartet from Smith-Cotton, composed of Don Hofheins, Chaster O'Bannon, John Loague and Larry Owens, sang three numbers: 'Massas In the Cold, Cold, Ground," "In the Merry, Merry Month of May," and "Coney Island Baby."

Mrs. Lawrence Dailey gave the devotional. A letter of thanks was read from Mrs. Gib Owen for the splendid work in collecting for the March of Dimes.

Letters of regret were read from Mrs. Hugh Courtney, Mrs. H. F. Rapp, Mrs. Phil Burford and Mrs. E. W. Brubaker, all past council presidents, who could not be present.

The following were introduced and presented yellow rose buds: Mrs. M. E. Green, Mrs. William L. Reed, Mrs. John T. Poague and Mrs. Gib Owen.

Mrs. Loague then introduced Mrs. M. E. Green, guest speaker. At the beginning of her talk, she pointed out that Founders Day programs need not be made monotonous, there are too many interesting facts in the history of the Parent Teacher organization that can be brought out. She then gave a short, interesting resume of the founders, Mrs. Birney, Mrs. Hearst and Mrs. Meyers. Sedalia's PTA units were organized starting in 1912, but is was November, 1919 before a council was founded in Sedalia.

Mrs. Green then gave a history of how Buena Vista Home came into being, comparing its organization with that of a PTA unit. There are at present 42 guests living at the home, she said. All present were given an invitation to go and visit the guests of Buena Vista at any time.

UN, Indian Leaders Lunch Together For Bidding Farewell

PANMUNJOM (AP) — Top U. N. and Indian commanders had lunch together Saturday in advance of the Indians' departure from Korea where they guarded unrepatriated war prisoners.

Any ill feeling resulting from the sometimes angry bickering of the past four months was drowned out in a round of "goodbyes" and "thank you" speeches.

"I think you will all agree it was a diffcult assignment and that it was made easier by the friendship and cooperation shown by the command of Gen. Hull," said Gen. K. S. Thimayya, Indian chairman of the Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission.

"We appreciate the cooperative spirit shown by the Indians. Our best wishes go with you. Goodbye, thank you. I hope we meet again sometime in the future."

Also attending the luncheon in a bare U. N. warehouse just south of Korea's demilitarized zone were Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, U. S. 8th Army commander, and Maj. Gen. S. P. P. Thorat, commander of Indian custodial troops.

The first contingent of about 1,000 Indian troops will leave Korea for home Feb. 8.

Gas Firm Wins Okay On State Authority To Serve Bigger Area

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gas Service Co. of Kansas City won state authority today to serve 15½ sections in a fast developing area of Clay and Platte Counties North of Kansas City.

The new territory adjoins the east side of the company's present service area in Platte County.

But the State Public Service Commission turned down Gas Service's application to serve another four sections at Gladstone, including the villages of Oakview, Oakwood Park, Oakwood and Oaks.

COMMANDERS PLAN FIELD TRAINING—Maj. Gen. John C. McLaughlin, commanding general of the 35th Infantry Division, is shown seated at the extreme right at a meeting Jan. 23 at the Fifth Army headquarters in Chicago to plan this summer's field training of the Missouri and Kansas National Guard units. The other officers are, left to right: seated, Brig. Gen. Joseph J. Twitty, chief of staff, Fifth Army; Maj. Gen. Joe Nickell, Kansas adjutant general; Lt. Gen. William B. Kean, commanding general, Fifth Army; and Gen. McLaughlin; standing, Lt. Col. David T. Beals III, G3; Brig. Gen. Galvin E. Berry, commanding general in Kansas; and Maj. Gen. Charles L. Dasher, deputy commanding general, Fifth Army.

National Guard Notes—

Gen. McLaughlin, Col. Blue Return from Staff Conference

Maj. Gen. John C. McLaughlin, commanding general of the 35th Infantry Division, National Guard, and Lt. Col. James M. Blue, adjutant general, have returned from a staff conference Jan. 23 at the Fifth Army headquarters in Chicago, where they discussed plans for this summer's field training program at Camp McCoy, Wis.

The main subject of discussion was the logistical support which the division can expect when it begins the training. This year the men will be housed in cantonment-type barracks instead of the tent camps used at Camp Ripley, Minn., from 1951 to 1953.

The armored units will have 51 medium tanks at their disposal.

The food supply was also discussed, along with the availability of such facilities as post exchanges and post theatres.

A staff school is being held in Kansas City Saturday and Sunday at which material from the command and general staff college at Ft. Leavenworth will be presented to the staff officers.

Attending from Sedalia's Armory will be Gen. McLaughlin, Col. Blue, Col. Robert B. Holt, division advisor, Maj. Herman A. Meyers, assistant adjutant general, Cap. Howard Hill, division air advisor, and WO Gerhardt C. Jaeger. There will be about 50 officers attending from Missouri and Kansas.

Gen. McLaughlin will attend the quarterly meeting in Jefferson City of the division's advisory council on Feb. 17. The senior commanders of the National Guard units of Missouri will confer largely on financial matters.

The 35th Division headquarters received an excellent rating from Fifth Army headquarters this week for its showing in the recent annual armory inspection. The report for Battery C, 128th Field Artillery Batallion, has not yet been received. This is the second year the headquarters has been rated excellent.

Is Convinced It Is Hard To Kill a Man

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Feb. 6 —After 34 years of teaching the disabled how to get the most out of life, Dr. Henry Kessler is convinced it's hard to kill a man.

As head of the Kessler Institute for Rehabilitation here and a representative of the United Nations Technical Assistance Administration who has helped set up rehabilitation centers abroad, he has worked daily with multiple amputees, paraplegics, the blind and the halt.

Experiences he has come across over the years have left him optimistic.

"I feel the human being will turn out all right," he says.

As a Navy doctor in World War II, he recalls treating a Marine flier who was shot down, then mutilated by a Japanese pilot who flew his plane into the parachuting American. One leg was lost by the time Navy medics fished the wounded man out of the Pacific.

"I had to amputate his other leg and an arm," Dr. Kessler reports.

That was in 1942. Years later, Kessler met his ex-Marine patient. "He was getting around with three artificial limbs, was married, had two children and was a member of the Wisconsin legislature."

This is one of those cases, Dr. Kessler says, which sometimes helps a disabled individual to face and overcome his own problems.

To NameGroup To Reorganize Foreign Service

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 (AP) — Secretary Dulles, with President Eisenhower's approval, will soon name a five-man commission to chart steps to reorganize and expand the State Department's dwindling foreign service.

Under Secretary of State Walter B. Smith, in announcing this today, said it was a move to build up a corps of experienced career diplomats who would be recognized by the American public as nonpartisan, trusted government servants.

The review, expected to be completed in six weeks, may lead to a merger of the State Department's civil service officers and career diplomats into a single foreign affairs service.

The new look, Smith said, is urgently needed because the number of trained career diplomats has dropped from about 1,400 to 1,305. A total of 19,405 employes man the American government's 270 diplomatic outposts throughout the world but the overwhelming majority of these are non-career employes who hold either civil service status or other rank. A total of 8,781 represent alien employes working for American diplomattic missions abroad.

To become a foreign service officer, a person must take examinations distinct from those given civil service workers. These exams generally considered tougher than civil service tests, lay stress on such things as foreign languages and foreign affairs.

Officials indicated they are experiencing difficutly in getting civil service workers to swtch to the foreign service. Among the reasons cited were:

1. Criticism that has been leveled at diplomats in recent years.

2. Reluctance of many of those civil service workers who have homes and families in the Unittd States to go abroad.

Smith called in a bipartisan delegation of senators and congressmen to his office today to inform them of the new plan. He told reporters the legislators were highly in favor of the idea but suggested that instructions for the five-man study group be drawn carefully.

The commission will be made up of three distinguished private citizens, Smith said, a retired career diplomat of ambassadorial rank and a former or present under secretary.

Hunt for Ransom Bills Continues In Mexico City

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 6 (AP) — Sporadic checking for Greenlease ransom bills continued here today pending an official ruling on whether an all-out search by Mexican banks is practical.

No announcement is expected before Monday at the earliest, bank sources said.

U. S. authorities gave the Banco de Mexico a full list of numbers of the more than $300,000 in missing ransom money, asking that Mexican banks check all U. S. currency against these figures. Slightly less than half the $600,000 ransom paid to the kidnap-slayers of 6-year-old Bobby Greenlease was received on their arrest in Missouri.

The semi - official government Banco de Mexico distributed the list of missing bills to all banks requesting that a check be made.

As a result some $10 and $20 ransom bills were found in Mexico, and newspapers quoted some unidentified sources as saying the full amount was believed to be in this country.

The Mexican Bankers Association representing the various banks, said an all-out check of all U. S. currency was too much of a job and asked that the Banco de Mexico cancel its orders.

So far the Banco de Mexico has made no official reply, and the instructions stand, it was said today.

Only cursory checks are being made at present, however, a bank source said. He pointed out that tens of thousands of U. S. dollars are handled daily, and it would require an extra staff adequately to check all of it.

The original ransom money found in Mexico, a prominent banker said, was turned up during early checks of the money, and before it was decided that the project was impractical.

Cathode Rays Cure Rare Skin Cancer

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 6—(AP)—Four specialists, pointing to statistics and colored slides, today told members of the American Cancer Society what medicine has been doing in its fight against the killing disease.

But it was a ruddy-faced, 74-year old retired Bradford, R. I., man who put the case on the line when he told the assembled laymen:

"When, after three or four years of torture—knowing you can't get away from the disease—you can lie down and sleep like a baby, then you know life's worth living."

The living statistic was Charles E. Ross, once the apparent hopeless victim of a rare skin cancer—mycosis fungoides. He won his fight against the disease with the help of cathode rays, the same sort of rays given off by your television set.

The cathode rays in the TV set, however, are too weak to penetrate the glass screen. To help victims like Ross, medicine harnessed a three million volt cathode ray tube which sprays the rays over the patient's body.

Ross was one of seven persons who appeared before the ACS at the request of Dr. Hugh F. Hare of Los Angeles. It was Dr. Hare, in association with Dr. John G. Trump of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who helped develop the rotation radiation treatment—a technique in which the patient is revolved in a moving chair while powerful X-rays are concentrated on the cancer in his body.

Ross was the first person to receive treatment from the cathode rays harnessed at MIT. His treatments began three years ago, under the supervision of Drs. Hare and Trump.

Now, Ross is a healthy man once more.

Six other persons told the ACS meeting of their victories over cancer after the rotation radiation treatment. All said they were free of cancer symptoms and living normal lives once more two and three years after the treatments were completed.

Earthquake Reported To Wreck Four Towns, Damage Three Villages

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 6—(AP)—An earthquake was reported to have wrecked four towns yesterday and damaged three other villages in remote coffee-growing Chiapas state of Mexico bordering Guatemala.

Gen. Augustin Mutieles, military zone commander in Chiapas, said tonight he knew of about five deaths, but shaken survivors arriving at the state capital from the stricken area tonight were telling stories of widespread death and destruction.

Gen. Mutieles said the information he had been able to gather indicated the destruction was catastrophic. He said the town of Yajalon, whose population he gave as 5,000, was hardest hit and completely ruined.

Three other towns with a total population of about 3,200 were reported destroyed, and the disaster was said to have hit a 50-mile area.

Troops were sent into the area to preserve order.

Hvasta Back Home; He Says Treason Charges Are False

HILLSIDE, N. J., Feb. 6 (AP)—John Hvasta came home today to his family and his adopted country and said he was "falsely accused of military treason" in Czechoslovakia and was the victim of a propaganda trial.

Hillside opened its heart to welcome him after his five bitter years of imprisonment and dodging Communist police.

He fell into the arms of his mother, Mrs. Michael Hvasta, at New York's Idlewild Airport and murmured, "Thank God, thank God, thank God, thank God."

Hvasta was reluctant to talk of his experiences as he was whisked to New Jersey for a big homecoming celebration, complete with a parade and speeches by local officials and a congressman.

But later he answered written questions submitted to him by newsmen.

He told how he had been allowed to marry his Czech wife, Gabriella Bansova Hvasta, while he was in prison.

He hasn't seen her for two years and doesn't know where she is now, "but I still love her," He added he has heard from her indirectly.

His pretty young wife has been variously reported in and out of Czech prisons, harrassed by Communist officials, and now is missing.

He was reluctant to talk of his fantastic escape from the grim prison two years ago, and the cat and mouse game he played with Communist police while hiding out for the next 21 months.

He said he had had some narrow escapes "but I'm not at liberty to discuss them." A friend said the family has relatives in Czechoslovakia and is afraid of Red reprisals against them.

Hvasta said he was beaten and tortured "mentally and physically" by the authorities in an effort to make him confess falsely. "Under God's help I was able to resist," he said.

Asked if he had a message for America, Hvasta said "all of the freedom loving peoples behind the Iron Curtain are looking to us for salvation or help."

Hillside turned out en masse for the earlier welcome celebration and Hvasta told the cheering Crowd, "I always kept my faith in the American people and my faith in God.

"Had I lost that faith, I would have lost myself," the 26-year-old ex-sailor said.

He parried many of the questions thrown at him, indicating he intended to write out his story and sell it.

But from what is already known, the odyssey of John Hvasta turns the wildest work of adventure fiction pale by contrast.

Pope Pius Shows Slight Renewal Of Strength

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 6—(AP)—Pope Pius XII was able to maintain today a flicker of renewed strength noted during the night, but doctors kept up a constant bedside vigil over the stricken 77-year-old pontiff.

Prof. Riccardo Galeazzi Lisi, the Pope's perosnal physician, reported symptoms of a "very slight improvement" but said general weakness persisted. Later the Vatican press office announced the slight improvement continued during the day.

These words kindled hope among millions of Roman Catholics who offered up prayers in many parts of the world for their ailing spiritual leader.

From his simple wooden bed in his apostolic palace apartment the pale and gaunt Pope painfully gave instructions and conferred for an hour with his faithful pro-secretary of state; Msgr. Giovanni Batista Montini.

The Pope has been confined to his bed for 13 days with a stubborn and not fully explained internal ailment. It attacked his aged body at a time when he was weary and worn from prolonged overwork.

Pilot's Report Raises Hopes of 7 Survivors

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Feb. 6 (AP) —A civilian pilot's report of sighting three men several miles from the scene of an Air Force C47's crash—landing raised hopes today that at least five of the 16 men aboard may have survived.

Another pilot reported yesterday seeing two men jumping up and down at the crash scene as he flew over.

The new report, from an unidentified small plane pilot, raised hopes that several of the men may have parachuted safely before the two-engined plane went down yesterday in mountianious terrain 75 miles north of Anchorage.

The new report said the three men were seen 10 to 15 miles west of the previously reported crash site.

All aboard the plane were military personnel.

No Probes Into Schools Or Clergy

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6—(AP)—The House Un-American Activities Committee tonight gave a clean bill of health to the overwhelming majority of American clearymen and teachers, while deploring that "a few" are Communists.

In its annual report to Congress, the committee also declared that it has not conducted, and does not intend to conduct, any "investigation of subversive infiltration of the clery or religion." Similarly, it said, it has never probed into "the curricular of any school" or "into classroom procedures or the teaching methods of an educator."

However, it said that any individual who is a Communist "enjoys no immunity from investigation, regardless of his rank of calling." It said that where it has determined that an individual clergyman is a Communist it "has proceeded exactly as it would in the case of any other person so identified."

Last year, Rep. Velde (R-Ill), chairman of the committee, drew some sharp criticism when he said it was "entirely possible" the committee might probe for Communists among the nation's clergymen. Later he disavowed any intention of such a hunt, although he said individual clergymen might be investigated.

Last month Velde and some other committee members met with a group of Protestant, Catholic and Jewish leaders to receive what Velde termed "constructive criticisms and suggestions."

In its report today, the committee said "a minute number of case-hardened Communists and Communist symathizers have actually infiltrated themselves into the ranks of the loyal clergy."

Other clergymen, it said, have allowed their names to be used by Communist groups because of "lack of careful study" or humanitarian motives. The committee said it does not feel "such association should be taken lightly or passed off without correction."

As for the field of education, it said there is "danger inherent in the presence of even a few Communist party members in taching capacities."

The committee served notice that it does not intend to limit its investigations to Communist but will seek to expose "various and sundry 'hate' groups. . . . spreading dissension, discord, bigotry and intolerance."

Templer Uses Firm Policy In Malaya

Editor's Note: Irish-born Gen. Sir Gerald Templer has a reputation for toughness in Malaya, where he serves as Britain's high commissioner. He'll carry it with him next fall when he takes over as commander of the Allies Northern Army group in Europe and the British Army of the Rhine. Here's a closeup of Templer in action in Malaya and a look at his record in that troubled land.

By OLEN CLEMENTS

SEGAMAT, Johore, Malaya, Feb. 6 (AP)—Gen. Sir Gerald Templer stared hard at the Chinese and Tamil Indian village councilmen.

"What's the matter with you people?" he demanded. "Haven't you any guts?"

An interpreter rattled off his words.

"I hear Communists have been seen in this village and you didn't even shoot at them."

The general's trim mustache quivered. You could have heard a coconut drop in the jungle 100 yards away.

The councilmen squirmed in their seats.

"If I ever hear of you seeing a Communist in this village again and you don't shoot him I'll take away your guns," the general roared.

Irish-born Sir Gerald, British high commissioner of Malaya, paused.

"I can be a hard man if I have to be."

He sounded like a hard man.

"That is all," he concluded. He got up, stalked to his car and roared away to another village.

There another anxious council waited for this trim, 54-year-old soldier who will command the Allied Northern Army group in Europe and the British Army of the Rhine next fall.

"Food is still going out of this village to the Communists," he stormed. "I want it stopped."

The councilmen sweated.

"This shooting has got to stop," Templer declared. "It has gone on long enough. The only way to beat these jungle Reds is to starve them. Let them get hungry enough and they'll give up."

The translator droned on. The general eyed the fidgety villagers.

"Has anybody anything to say?" growled the general.

Nobody spoke.

A smile toyed around the general's mouth. The tension lessened.

"If you will stop all food from going out of this village, I'll move the curfew back one hour."

The councilmen promised rapidly. They were relieved. They shook the general's hand as he walked out into the rain.

These are scenes typical of Templer's regular visits to villages in the Malayan provinces. He wants desperately to win the nearly six year-old war against Red rebels here and he believes a firm policy is the surest means to victory.

He steps down from his Malayan post next June. By the time he leaves Malaya, Templer will have moved 400,000 Malays, Chinese and Tamil Indians from their jungle homes, where they were prey to the Reds, to new villages, some with two wire fences around them, to keep out Communist prowlers.

He feels he has accomplished his main objectives here. Malaya's police have been reorganized, the nucleus of a federation army has been started and Malaya is slowly regaining confidence.

The general's predecessor, Sir Henry Gurney, was murdered by the Communists and Red violence was at its peak when Templer arrived early in 1952.

The famous Templer temper was known when he landed in Kuala Lumpur, the capital and nobody was surprised by his dynamic drive. But the big question was: would the strong military man the crisis demanded also have the political touch? Today, there are no doubts here on that score.

Templer has been as big a success politically as militarily and has impressed his personality on the political scene to a greater degree than any high commissioner before him.

Busy Calendar Delays Roosevelt Hearing

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—The separate maintenance suit against James Roosevelt, in which his wife accuses him of adultery with 12 women, won't go to trial for six or eight months, a judge said today.

A crowded calendar will delay the case, said Superior Judge Kurtz Kauffman, who recessed a pre-trial hearing yesterday after a lawyer tried to question Roosevelt about one of the women.

Kauffman ruled such questions will be proper only when Mrs. Romelle Schneider Roosevelt's suit for $3,500 monthly support actually is tried.

Intimate details of Roosevelt's complex financial affairs and his family's lavish standard of life were recited in the day-long court session. Opposing counsel will delve further into these matters when the temporary support hearing is resumed Feb. 15.

Mary Boland Returns In Comical 'Lullaby'

"I've had to pull my normally high, shrill voice way down for this role," she says. "I didn't think I could make it. Then I remembered when I was 17, with a very high voice, I played the queen in 'Hamlet' and I managed to work out a deep voice for that. But our 'Hamlet' ran for only one performance."

"Lullaby" will be around much longer.

Looking Back Behind Pettis County's Budget for a Year

Last Sunday The Democrat carried a summary of the Pettis County budget for 1954, as it has been prepared by the county court. It was a brief summary, carrying only the totals. This week we have heard the budget discussed some, and have heard favorable reaction to the action which cuts the county tax rate from 50 cents to 47 cents on the $100 valuation for the current year.

Perhaps you want to look deeper into the budget, know more about it and understand, in a measure how a county budget is compiled and how it works.

Preparation of the facts and figures is no small task. Every officer of the county must itemize the list of expenses for that office for the coming year—salaries, the necessary supplies (even to pencils, pen points, paper, ledgers, etc.), what equipment or furnishings is needed.

While each officer is doing that, the county court and the county clerk must figure the needs for all other county affairs, the upkeep and maintenance of buildings and roads, the care and hospitalization, even burial of those without funds, the various agencies which the county assists, the costs for elections and juries, vital statistics records, law library additions, and a thousand and one other things.

After all the costs have been itemized, the court must go over them one by one, cutting and eliminating where possible, or adding to in places where it is seen the estimates were too low.

They now have the expenses all in one place, itemized and totaled.

Then on the other side of the ledger they must figure the resources, the amount of money that is now on hand, the amount that will come in during the coming year, and the amount that will be needed at the end of the year to operate the county until new funds for the coming year begin to be collected.

Sometimes it will appear, from a brief summary of a budget, that there is a lot of money on hand at the beginning of a year. This, by legal terminology, is called "surplus." Actually it isn't surplus, however, for this is the money the county will use to pay its obligations for the first half of the year, perhaps longer.

Very little money is collected by the county during the early months of the year. There are some fees and some licenses that are paid from January through June, but these are small sums compared with the amounts needed to pay the current bills.

If the county did not wind up the year with a balance on hand, the warrants (checks) could not be issued, or if they were issued, they would have to be "protected." (A protected warrant is one which is honored at a bank just as a note, and on which interest must be paid. Counties can, and some do, protect warrants, but when they do they are operating in the red and at the added cost of the interest).

Since most of the tax money is paid in the last four months of the year, the big sums coming in November and December, it is necessary that a county have on hand at the beginning of a year almost enough cash to carry through the next 12-months.

Pettis County is in this condition. From the summary of last week it may be noted that the county began the year with a balance on hand of $258,586.85 including cash in the hands of the treasurer and 1953 taxes collected and in the hands of the collector to be used for the 1954 budget. That is the amount left after unpaid obligations are paid from the year end's total cash.

That fund is not enough to operate the county for a year, but it is enough to carry through until the next year's tax money begins to come in.

The court must also figure the year's estimated revenue. Using the figures of the assessor as the basis of the tax assessments, and the figures of the county clerk, who extended the tax and computed the amounts available for the various funds, the county court can decide on a tax rate.

The judges know how much money is estimated as needed for the year's operations and can figure a tax rate that will give this amount—when it is added to the sums which will come in from fees, licenses, state payments, etc.

State law sets a maximum of 50 cents on the $100 valuation for the tax rate, but court can cut that to any figure which will provide the necessary fund.

On the basis of an assessed valuation of 49,311,480, thec county court this year decided upon 47 cents.

From the money thus counted upon, and the money on hand, the court has all the figures of the budget. Besides those mentioned above, there were a few set sums that had to be included.

Now they have the facts and figures, they must put them in the budget under certain classes.

Class I is for the care of the insane in state institutions. It is a fairly set figure at a specified amount per month for each person in the state hospitals. This year Class I calls for $13,500.

Class II is for juries and elections. From past experience both of these can be fairly closely estimated, and since this is an election year, the amount must be more than it was a year ago. Class II calls for $25,580.

Class III is for roads and bridges. It is for materials, only, that this money is expended and the 1954 budget calls for $59,065.61. Other road money must come from other funds (see Class VI) while special road districts have money of their own to spend on roads.

Class IV includes salary and office expense. Most of the salaries are set by state statute, but also included here is the expense for the various offices' supplies and equipment, and the $6,600 which the county gives to the Farm Bureau to maintain the extension service in the county. The total in Class IV is $114,959.94.

Class V is the contingent and emergency fund. Many things are paid from this account. Some of these things include: care of county patients in state hospitals and instituitions (except insane), insurance, hospitalization, care and burial of paupers, fuel for county buildings, law library, Melita and Minneola Day Nursery assistance, donations, book binding, and welfare office. These total for class V to $62,283.

In this, also, comes the operation and maintenance of county buildings. For 1954 the court has put an item of $25,000, for such building work. It is planned that this will include the addition of a new wing at Buena Vista as a men's dormitory. That would cost about $15,000 and would leave $10,000 for other repair work needed at the home and at the Courthouse.

Class VI is equipment and other legal expenditures. This year much of the money for this fund will go to the King Road Bill program. There is $50,000 set aside for the county to use in matching state funds for county road projects, plus $8,000 for the county's part on King Bill Road maintenance and $25,000 for bridges, equipment and materials. The elevator at the courthouse is included, too, for an estimated $20,000. Class VI's total is $104,345.

This would all add up to show that the county had on hand at the beginning of this year, after obligations had been paid, a cash balance of $258,586 as explained before. That taxes, fees and other funds to be collected for the year would be $259,902.45. And that total expenses would be $420,901.96.

Since these are all just estimated, except the amount of cash on hand, no one can know how much money there will be at the end of the year to begin a new year. There can be only the hope that it will be sufficient to operate the county until the new monies begin to be collected. —C. M.

Dr. Holloway, Ex-Sedalian, Has Busy Life at Age of 94

Dr. James L. Holloway, 3317 Gillon, Ave., Dallas, Tex., who was a classmate of Dr. Edwin D. Holbert in Kirksville Osteopathis College, upon receiving the Sedalia Democrat in which was an article about Dr. Holbert, wrote to him to tell him that it was in Sedalia that he, too, started his professional life.

It was in 1882 that Dr. Holloway came to Sedalia as principal of the old Broadway High School and he still keeps up correspondence with a number of his former pupils. Among them are Mrs. E. F. Yancey, Miss Lulu Monroe, Eliot Stafford, Miss Lida Burris, Miss Stella Crandall, Mrs. Hattie Belle Fletcher and William Jacobs. Some who have died are Lee Montgomery, Mint John, and Mrs. Mary Keever.

One of his pupils, who graluated while he was principal, was Mary Leaming and he married her in 1884. Their first child was born in Sedalia in 1888 and in 1889 he left here to accept a position as superintendent of Fort Smith, Ark., city schools. He was there 13 years, resigning to study osteopathy in 1902.

As an osteopathic doctor he first went to Little Rock to practice, but in a few months moved to Dallas. That was in August, 1904. In 1937 Dr. Holloway retired at the age of 77. He is now in his 94th year, but is in fairly good health. An investment in stocks has brought him a good income, so, although he lives alone, he is enjoying life. He still drives his car except in the heavy traffic of Dallas, which he says has grown by leaps and bounds in the 50 years he has been there.

Dr. Holloway bought his seven room home in 1916, and even though his wife died in 1943, he still keeps the home where he has a large lot with a garden of roses and other flowers. Among the trees are four pecan trees that he set out when he first moved there and which now bear abundantly.

His older son, a Ph D. from Cornell, who was on the faculty of the University of Arkansas for 20 years, died in 1945. His daughter, Ruth, a partial invalid, lives in Dallas and his younger son, J. L. Holloway, Jr., is a vice admiral, now Chief of Naval Personnel, stationed in Washington, D. C. He served in both World Wars, on both oceans.

Dr. Holloway has plenty of grandchildren, all of whom he is very proud. There are six grandchildren and 16 great grandchildren.

GRADUATES — Bill Franklin, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Franklin, route 2, Sedalia, has received his B. S. degree in business and public administration from Missouri University, where he has attended for the last four years. Mr. Franklin has accepted a position with the Weyerhaeuser Sales Co., leaving Sedalia Feb. 10 for Tacoma, Wash. From there he will be transferred to his home office. He will be accompanied by his wife, Beverly, and their two children, Stevie, 2½, and Julie, 6 weeks old. Mrs. Franklin is the former Beverly Feig, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Feig, 1000 South Barrett. Both Mr. and Mrs. Franklin are graduates of Smith-Cotton High School, class of 1950. Mr. Franklin was student council president and active in many other school functions. While in Washington Mr. and Mrs. Franklin and children will visit with Mr. Franklin's uncle, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Franklin.

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP)—Thousands of workers in this city of 332,000 were without bus transportation today as a result of an unexpected strike of about 900 drivers and mechanics of Rochester Transit Corp. The city's subway trolley line also was shut down.

One-Armed Man, 70, Knocks Out Bandit

CHICAGO (AP)—A 70-year-old one-armed man told police last night he knocked out a man who tried to rob him by hitting him on the head with a kerosene lamp.

"He grabbed for my wallet after I told him I didn't have any money," Brooks told police. "That's when I bopped him with the lantern."

Public Library Notes—

City Librarian Makes Weekly Visits to Bothwell Patients

For twenty-one years a member of the library staff has made weekly visits to the Bothwell Hospital to bring hours of relaxation and pleasure to the patients. At the present time the librarian, Miss Mary Kay English, makes these calls and is always a welcome visitor, especially to those who have had long illnesses and much time on their hands.

Between 75 and 100 books are kept at the hospital, carefully chosen for readability and subject matter. Light love stories, family stories, mystery and detective novels, westerns and humor are most wanted by ill persons, Miss English has found. She adds three or four new selections to her bookcart each week to replace books that no longer circulate. When a new book is received at the main library that is perceived to be a "good hospital book," an additional copy is ordered immediately for that collection. Such a book is the recent "Rainbow on the Road," by Esther Forbes.

Excellent cooperation by the hospital authorities and nurses provides a book closet on the second floor. The nurses check with the librarian upon her arrival, advise her which patients are well enough to read and give her every assistance in making her rounds. Books are checked out to the patients for two weeks, but may be returned to the deposit box maintained in the lobby earlier if desired. An additional service is the mailing of requested books to patients who want a particular volume not included in the hospital collection.

"Our hospital service is one of the most appreciated ones we offer," Miss English said regently. "Never a week goes by that some patient doesn't take time to tell me how much they enjoy the books, and sometimes we get notes of appreciation from discharged patients. The nice part of it is that we have brought the joy of reading, in some cases, to people who hadn't known it before."

Coffee Shortage May Boost Use Of Home Product

By Mrs. Herbert Hansen

LINCOLN—Many homemakers in this vicinity, as elsewhere, are wondering how long it will be possible for them to serve their families the usual fragrant cup of steaming hot coffee with every meal, what with the price of coffee soaring daily.

Some admit they are enjoying its rich flavor and aroma but once a day, and that for breakfast, substituting at other meals with tea, fruit juices or milk.

In order to extend the beverage, some are adding a few less ground per cup, but one of the Lincoln's residents, long noted for the fine cup of coffee he brews, suggests the blending of two brands of coffee, one superior and one less superior, the practice of which he says not only acts as an extender, buta lso insures a much finer tasting cup of coffee. This might be well worth remembering even when, and if, coffee prices get back to normal.

What is causing this great shortage of coffee is yet to be learned, but one coffee tree produces, it is said, only one pound coffee per year. If it is true that many Brazilian trees, our chief source of coffee beans, were chopped down and destroyed because of the low price of coffee there, and a late frost did its share of destruction to coffee crops, it sounds very much like situations which have been experienced right here in our own United States. What if its price does soar so high, the average family can no longer afford to include it on their shopping lists? Its use is only a habit anyway and for many of us so why not susbtitute something we peoduce right here in our own country as a new all time favored beverage, like milk or fruit juices?

This Is Love!

BUTTE, Mont. (AP) — A Butte girl picked up a beer bottle and bashed her boy friend over the head. The bottle shattered, cutting his face and her hand.

Police related: "After the couple was treated in a Butte hospital they apologized to each other, kissed and left the hospital arm in arm."

PROMOTED—Charles E. Bobbitt, who was recently promoted to corporal while serving with the 79th Engineer Construction Battalion, which is aiding the reconstruction of Korea under the Armed Forces Aid program. His wife, Mrs. Elaine Bobbitt, Otterville, resides at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bobbitt, route 1, Otterville. Cpl. Bobbitt expects to leave Korea sometime in May.

Big Events Are Slated For B'way This Month

Several big events are slated to come up on Broadway later this month. The new Elmer Rice play "The Winner" is due to arrive soon and Audrey Hepburn will appear in the Jean Giradoux play "Ondine."

But the biggest opening coming up, judging from preview reports in Philadelphia and New Haven, is the musical "The Girl in Pink Tights."

The lineup for tickets at the Mark Hellinger, where the show opens Feb. 25, couldn't be longer if the girl in pink tights was parading around the lobby.

Among the activities supported by the Heart Fund is that of keeping physicians informed about newest advances in research, diagnosis and treatment of heart and blood vessel diseases.

ENLISTS IN AIR FORCE—John Harrison Baldwin 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ezra J. Baldwin, 415 East Jackson, enlisted in the Air Force for four years and has been sent to Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Tex., for recruit training. Baldwin attended Smith-Cotton High School and was then employed by the International Shoe Co., Washington, Mo. He had prior service with the National Guard for about 16 months.

Seek Single Plan To Dismiss GIs Who Use Fifth Amendment

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Defense Department is trying to shape a single, overall policy on how the armed forces should dismiss military personnel who refuse, under the Fifth Amendment, to say whether they are or have been Communists.

Secretary of the Army Stevens already has his own idea. He told reporters Wednesday that if a soldier or officer invokes the Fifth Amendment "he is not entitled to an honorable discharge." It is the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution which says a man may not be compelled to testify against himself.

Stevens' comment was on a case in which Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) declared the Army had allowed an officer to resign instead of firing him after what McCarthy claimed was the officer's refusal to specify for Senate committee investigators whether he ever had Communist connections.

TAKES AF BASIC — Jimmie Chapin, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Chapin, 216 Dundee, is completing his AF basic airmen indoctrination course at Lackland Air Force Base, the "Gateway to the Air Force." 2 Main Events On Wrestling Card Friday

Double main event is the wrestling schedule for next Friday night at the National Guard Armory, sponsored by the Pettis County Post No. 16, American Legion. Joe Adelman, promoter is bringing into the local ring two events which are thrillers in women wrestling and team-tag events.

Mildred Burke, renowned women's World Champion from Los Angeles, California, is coming back to Sedalia. She is scheduled in a one-hour match against challenger Ann La Verne of Canton, Ohio. Miss Burke who has been working in the ring for a number of years has never been defeated since she copped the title.

In spite of the more than a year lay-off because of a serious automobile accident, she has made a remarkable return to the sport against all advice of doctors at first. She has been back for the past year now and her physical condition has improved steadily. So much has her wrestling improved her condition, her doctors encourage her to get back into her old form of wrestling regularly like before her injuries.

Miss La Verne, who has eyed the belt for some time is glad at the chance to meet Miss Burke in Sedalia although there has been nothing said about an exchange of the title if she should win. That's something else.

In the other feature event four well known wrestlers of the local fans will be matched. Frank Altman who went to a draw with Adelman last week is coming back to have as his partner in the ring, Bobby Lane, a toughie from Miami, Fla.

The two are to meet Adelman who is taking as his partner Richard Brown, Overland, Park, Kas., who last week went to a 90-minute draw with the masked El Toro. Brown, although a youthful mat man in the heavyweight ranks is improving fast and will make an excellent teammate for Adelman.

The first match is to start at 8:30 p.m.

The American Legion is letting all service men in uniform into the matches on a special admission price of 50-cents.

Central Defeats Wildcats, 87-74; 1st In Conference

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Central College Eagles edged back into first place in the M.C.A.U. basketball race last night by beating the Culver-Stockton Wildcats, 87-74, at Canton.

The victory, paced by 16 points by Dean Burgess and Jerry Linneman, brought Central's conference record to seven victories and one loss. It left Drury's Panthers a half game off the pace at 6-1.

Drury will have an opportunity to regain a tie for the lead in a game with Missouri Valley at Springfield tonight.

In other M.C.A.U. action last night, the Westminster Blue Jays won their first league game of the season, 79-64, over Tarkio at Tarkio as Bill Cross found the range for 19 points.

There was no M.I.A.A. activity last night, but three games are on the slate tonight. The league leading Springfield Bears will be at Cape Girardeau, Kirksville at Rolla and Maryville at Warrensburg.

'Determine' Wins $29,350 Handicap

ARCADIA, Calif., Feb. 6 (AP) — Andy Crevolin's favored Determine drew to the front in the stretch to win by a length and one-half over a fast track in the $29,350 San Felipe Handicap for three-year-olds at Santa Anita park today.

The place wound up in a dead heat between Travertine and Mr. Mustard in the 11-horse field. The winning time for the mile and a sixteenth was 1:42 2-5.

A crowd of 48,000 under sunny skies watched the final tuneup for the $100,000 added Santa Anita Derby two weeks from today. They also saw Johnny Longden boot home Indian Hemp in the companion $15,000 On Trust Handicap.

The 8-5 favorite, Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Find, finished out of the money in the prep for next week's $50,000 San Antonio Stakes and the richer Santa Anita Handicap on Feb. 27.

Coach Bryant Plans to Quit Job at Ky.-U.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 6 (AP)—Paul "Bear" Bryant, under a nine-year contract to the University of Kentucky but waiting to sign with Texas A&M said today he couldn't be persuaded to remain here.

The grid coach would not elaborate on his terse statement. It came after Kentucky's president, Herman L. Donovan, said he would not recommend acceptance of Bryant's resignation unless a suitable replacement is in sight.

"Coming at this particular time, with spring football practice in the offing, and on such late notice, it poses a difficult problem for the University Athletic Association," asserted Donovan.

The Courier-Journal said at Louisville tonight that Bryant is expected to receive his release from Kentucky within 48 hours.

The newspaper based its opinion on a poll it made of the school's athletic association officials and a statement given by Governor Lawrence Wetherby.

The newspaper also said that the athletic association would convene in Lexington Sunday or Monday.

The governor told the newspaper that as far as he personally is concerned, Bryant is entitled to his release.

The newspaper quoted Wetherby as saying:

"Paul came to me before he made his decision. He asked me if I would oppose his release from the University of Kentucky.

"I said 'absolutely not.' I said that if he wanted his release he could have it, and was entitled to it as far as I was concerned.

I presume he came to me because he promised a year ago that he would not make a move to leave without first coming to me.

He made that promise at the time Guy Huguelet, athletic association member, Dr. Donovan and I told him we would not oppose his release if he remained another year.

"It seems to me Paul did what he thought should be done.

The majority of athletic association members polled, the Courier-Journal said, expected the association's meeting to be a mere formality and stated they thought it would be futile to attempt to bind Bryant to his contract.

At College Station, Tex., President David H. Morgan indiciated Texas A & M would adopt a wait-and-see policy.

Dr. Morgan said the negotiations under which Bryant was offered a 6-year contract at $15,000 a year had not included Bryant's actual acceptance.

"We made the offer and he wired us Thursday that he was resigning at Kentucky. That's the way things stand now."

Bryant reportedly was drawing between $15,000 and $17,000 a year at Kentucky, a salary which Dr. Donovan said was increased voluntarily last month. In addition, the coach has radio and television programs that increase his income and only recently made plans to enter the insurance business with a former state revenue commissioner.

Standing on a coach's contract as Dr. Donovan is doing, at least for the present, is rare but not unheard of. In fact, the situation parallels one involving Kentucky and Indiana University in 1946.

Kentucky signed the late Bo McMillin to a 10-year contract before hiring Bryant but Indiana refused to accept McMillian's resignation.

Bryant's friends have said his resignation stems from his feeling that basketball is king at Kentucky at the expense of football.

But Dr. Donovan said thtre was no foundation for such reports, one of which was made today by Atlanta Sports Editor Ed Danforth.

BoSox Sign Jensen, Kinder For '54 Season

BOSTON, Feb. 6 (AP)—The signing of outfielder Jackie Jensen and Ellis Kinder, the aging but super relief pitcher, was announced tonight by the Boston Red Sox.

Jenstn was obtained from Washington last December in exchange for southpaw pitcher Maury McDermott and rookie outfielder Tom Umphlett.

Kinder set an American League record by making 69 relief appearances last season. While compiling a 10-6 record, the veteran flinger totaled 107 innings for a 1.85 earned run average. He totaled 39 strikeouts and gave up 38 bases on balls.

Earlier in the day the club reported that pitcher Ivan (Ike) Delock and second-string catcher Gus Niarhos had come to terms.

Cards To Confer With 2 Players On Contracts

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 6 (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals reported tonight contract conferences have beenset for next week with second baseman Red Schoendienst and pitcher Harvey Haddix, the club's two topranking holdouts.

General Manager Dick Meyer said both players have been asked to appear for another salary talk the latter part of next week.

Schoendienst, who received about $35,000 last year, reportedly has been offered an increase but is seeking about $50,000. Haddix, who is spending the winter in South Vienna, Ohio, received about $7,500 last season and reportedly has asked this figure be doubled.

The Cardinals have signed 19 of the 43 players on their roster to date, including outfielder Stan Musial. The club opens an advance spring training camp at Deland, Fla., next Friday.

Sports Scraps

(By D. Kelly Scruton)

SANDLOT baseball leagues are being organized in Missouri and will be franchised by the National Baseball Congress. it has been announced by Raymond Dumont, president. The organization and supervision will come under H. L. "Hank" Williams, the Missouri Commissioner for NBC.

It is interesting to note that each circuit champion will be awarded a trophy through the national organization. These same championship teams will be assured a berth in the state tournament in July which will be held in Sedalia.

These leagues will be in the 1954 National Association of Leagues, which in fact is a part of the National Baseball Congress.

To me organization of these leagues, which according to Williams, will come from towns of 5,000 in population or less. Thus more interest will be stimulated in semi-pro baseball and will in turn lead to getting better teams.

Baseball through this area needs a shot in the arm and a stimulate which will interest local fans to the point they will be anxious to see local baseball.

Williams has high hopes this season for a bigger and better tournament. If it doesn't improve this year, Sedalia stands a good chance of losing it again.

—O—

GOLDEN Gloves time in Kansas City starts Monday. It is a shame Sedalia isn't represented, but it has been well on to 12 years since we have had any boys who were even good enough to get through the front door, much less into the Tournament of Champions.

It isn't that Sedalia doesn't actually have good boys, it is just that they are not of the boxing type. They don't take to the art of the leather gloves anymore, around these parts.

Several tries have been made by others besides the Democrat-Capital and they likewise haven't had any luck in making any finds such as Denver "Buck" Miller, Aggie McMillian, Raymond Styles, the Martin brothers (Ray and Walt), a boy like the late Dean Murray or his brothers, and not to overlook our Sid Dahlsted, who has gone far in the army in the heavyweight division.

Maybe I'm getting a little senile on the subject—but those were great days back in the middle, late thirties and the early part of ttae forties. We had a great boxing team which was known throughout Missouri and Kansas, maybe someday a new crop will come along and maybe someone will be able to gather it up and produce another great Golden Glove team.

—O—

SACRED HEART played its last 1953-54 home basketball and volleyball game last Friday night. For some it was the last game to be played with the Gremlins, for several others it is only the beginning. Of course the season isn't over and the team has several more games to be played, but they are away from home.

Looking over the Gremlins, they didn't do so well in the season, but on the other hand they didn't do too bad considering the troubles which arose and gives any coach a headache.

However, Coach Palmer Nichols was always in there pitching win or lose and kept encouraging the boys in their playing. "Nick" will be back next year we hope with the Gremlins, and I'm sure he'll do rather well, he has some fairly good material coming up, some of which hit the varsity late in the season but did give a good account for themselves under the pressure.

Drop From Cage Tourneys Because Of Negro Teams

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

At least three Missouri high schools have withdrawn from subregional basketball tournaments because Negro teams will compete in the tourneys this year for the first time.

Huntsville and Keytesville have dropped out of the Salisbury subregional and Deering out of the Kennett tournament.

School officials said the withdrawals were ordered by the school boards.

Thirty Negro schools have joined the Missouri State Activities Assn. since the latter's members voted last year to admit them. There are 24 Negro schools in Class B and six in Class A.

The Class B sub-regionals will start Feb. 22 with 541 schools competing at 32 sites.

Russell Allen, superintendent at Huntsville, said the parents of the players were polled and were evenly divided on the question of competing against Negroes, but the school board ordered withdrawal.

At Keytesville, Supt. H. A. Sadler said the board took action after the parents voted 7 to 3 against competing.

Supt. J. F. Taylor at Deering said that board decided to wait until segregation is abolished in the schools before it removes segregation in school activities.

Lawrence Swisher, principal of Moberly's Lincoln School, one of the two Negro schools entered at Salisbury, was asked to comment on the withdrawals.

"It is everyone to his own opinion," he said. "But it is too bad that people are not broadminded enough to think that a colored boy and a white boy can't compete against each other. My students at Lincoln are just as fine as you'll find in any school."

Joyce Ziske In Win In Women's Golf

HOLLYWOOD, Fla., Feb. 6—(AP)—Joyce Ziske's sharp play around the greens carried the Milwaukee girl and her partner to a 4 and 3 triumph today and won them a shot at the title in the Women's International Amateur 4-ball golf tournament.

Miss Ziske, the Tam O'Shanter All-America champion, and her best-ball partner, Mexican champ Wiffi Smith of Guadalajara, ran up their surprisingly large victory margin over Polly Riley, Fort Worth, and Bee McWane of Birmingham. Polly and Bee were runners-up here last year.

Joining the Ziske-Smith team in tomorrow's 36-hole fainals were Cookie Swift of Great Neck, L. I., and Vonnie Colby of Hollywood, Fla. They defeated Marjorie McMillen of Decatur, Ill., and Bobbie Dawson of Piedmont, Calif., 2 and 1.

MANHATTAN, Kan., Feb. 6—(AP)—Kansas State exploded with a 27 point scoring burst in the last quarter to knock the Nebraska Cornhuskers out of the Big Seven basketball lead, 91-70, here tonight. It was Nebraska's first loss in five conference games.

K-U Downs Oklahoma In Cage Game 93-80

NORMAN, Okla., Feb. 6—(AP)—Kansas and Oklahoma matched basketball offenses at breakneck speed tonight before the classier Jayhawks pulled away from the Sooners in the third quarter to win the Big Seven contest 93-80.

More Than 150 To Box In KC Golden Gloves

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 6 (AP) — More than 150 amateur boxing stars frfom Missouri, Kansas, Arkansas and Texas will compete in the 19th annual Golden Gloves tournament of champions opening here Monday night.

They will battle for titles in the open and novice division.

The field is composed of the winners and outstanding performers in eight district tournaments, boxers from Greater Kansas City and members of the Army, Navy and Air Force.

The district tournaments were held at Joplin, Springfield, Chillicothe and St. Joseph in Missouri; Topeka, Hutchinson and Pittsburg in Kansas and Fort Smith, Ark. The Texas delegation will be from Lakeland Air Force Base in San Antonio.

More than half of the open division boxers hold either district or service championships.

Two champions of last year's tournament and four former champions will be back.

The 1953 winners are Jerry Morales, fflyweight, and Feazell Vernall, who won the 118-pound title last year but now has moved up to the featherweight division. Both are from Kansas City.

Former champions are Jim Cody of Kansas City, the 175-pound titlist in 1952, now a middleweight; Earl Rutherford of Joplin, twice a middleweight champ and now a heavyweight; Nick Haywood of Kansas City, featherweight champion in 1951, and William Morton of Lackland AFB, the 1952 featherweight winner.

Hutchinson tied with Fort Smith for the team crown last year and the Arkansas team is expected to be a powerful challenger again.

There will be about 40 bouts on Monday night's card, with about one-third of them in the open division. Novices will fight their semi-final and final bouts Tuesday night and the open division's first round will be completed.

Thirty-two open quarter - final scraps are set for Wednesday night. Then there will be a layoff until Saturday night when the open semi-final and final bouts will be staked.

The fights will start at 7 o'clock Monday and Tuesday and at 8 o'clock Wednesday and Saturday.

BROOKLYN, Feb. 6 (AP)— The Brooklyn Dodgers said today four pitchers headed by Johnny Podres had signed their 1954 contracts, bringing the club total to 23 players.

The other hurlers in the fold are Ron Negray, Glenn Mickens and Don Bessent.

Mickens was with Fort Worth of the Texas League part of last year, and won 8 and lost 5 games. A righthander, Mickens joined Brooklyn in July and appeared in four games with an 0-1 mark. He finished the season at Montreal with a 2-0 mark, pitching under Walter Alston who will take over this year as the Brooklyn manager.

Elixir Wins $72,400 McLennan Handicap

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 6 (AP)—Elixir, a 6-year-old chestnut gelding who likes Florida tracks, ran the best race of his life today to win the $72,400 McLennan Handicap at Hialeah Park before the season's biggest turnout of 26,347.

Elixir, ridden by Sammy Boulmetis and carrying only 110 pounds, caught the tiring leaders in the final stride and won by half a length over Mrs. J. R. H. Thouron's Royal Vale.

The latter, under top weight of 126 pounds with Jack Westrope up, also closed fast but was disqualified by the stewards and dropped to last in the bulky field of 16.

Sam Tufano's Wise Margin finished third and was moved up to second, with Eugene Constantin Jr.'s Royal Bay Gem taking third.

Valley Farm's Impasse, the 9-5 favorite, broke last and never was a factor, finishing 10th.

Elixir went off at 18-1 and returned $38.70, $22.30 and $11.30.

Bob Inman Grabs Lead In Phoenix OpenGolf Tourney

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 6 (AP)—Young Bob Inman, an ex-caddy from Tulsa, Okla., caught and passed three of the finest professionals in the business and took the lead at the end of 54 holes in the $10,000 Phoenix Open golf tournament today with a total score of 200.

The 26-year-old player shot a five-under-par 66 and goes into the final round tomorrow 13 strokes under par.

Inman, who learned about golf as a caddy on this course—the Phoenix Country Club with par 36-35—71—started the third round one stroke behind Middlecoff; the Australian star Peter Thompson and Canada's Stan Leonard.

At the wind-up before the largest Saturday crowd inthe tournament's history, the 136-pounder from Oklahoma was on top, Middlecoff second, Leonard was in fourth place and Thompson was tied for fifth.

Leonard shot a 70 and Thompson a 71.

John Weizel of Hershey, Pa., another newcomer to prominence, fired a 67 for 202.

Thomson was tied with Ed Furgol of St. Louis, Mo., who shot a brilliant 65, and Jack Harden of El Paso, Tex., who had a 69.

Inman, playing in a threesome with Leonard and Weitzel, just ahead of Thomson, Middlecoff and Harden, played evenly. He bagged three birdies on the first nine and two more on the back side.

For the first nine holes it appeared that Middlecoff and Thomson would be the ones fighting it out for the lead.

Jack Burke Jr., Kiameska Lake, N. Y., came in with a 66 for 205 and Marty Furgol, Lemont, Ill., Jim Ferrier, San Francisco, and Fred Haas, New Orleans, were tied at 206. Furgol had a 67 and Ferrier and Haas 70s.

Lloyd Mangrum, seeking his third straight victory here, got back into the running with a 64, in what he called "the best round I've had all winter—make it a year." But Mangrum still was tied at 208 with five others.

Inman, hoping to win his first tournament since he turned pro a year ago, was amazed when he found he was on top.

"Honestly, I thought Middlecoff would win but I wouldn't mind seeing the good doctor come in second," Inman said.

Westminster Dog Show Is This Week

NEW YORK, Feb. 6 (AP)—The ancient Westminster Kennel Club Dog Show—the one every canine aristocrat in the country dreams of winning—will hold its annual event Monday and Tuesday in Madison Square Garden and 2,572 pooches will try for the top prize.

There won't be any Fidos or Rovers in this one, the most important event of the dog show world. Unless a dog has won a blue ribbon, or is in the puppy class, he is strictly persona non grata around the bluebloods.

The show will follow its usual pattern with the breed judging Monday and early Tuesday. Then the group winners will be selected and out of the six top dogs in the groups will come the grand winner at about 10 p. m. (CST). Virgil D. Johnson of Savannah, Ga., will select the best-in-show. He also will decide the best team, best brace and best American bred.

All told 106 breeds, about par for the course, will be on display, and this time they'll all have a chance of winning because Ch. Racnho Dobe's Storm, the great Doberman Pinscher who won the last two shows, won't be around. He'll be munching biscuits in the home of his owners, Mr. and Mrs. Len Carey of Greenwich, Conn., where he is in retirement.

A better indication of the top candidates will come when five major specialty shows wind up tomorrow. They include the American Boxer Club, the Afghan Hound Club of America, the Associated Terrier Clubs, the Boston Terrier Club of New York and the Bulldog Club of America.

However, three of last year's variety winners will be back for another try at the title, and unless they get beaten in their breed, they'll have to rule the favorites to win their groups. They include Ch. Fancy Bombardier, a Bloodhound owned by Tom and Pearl Sheehan, the No. 1 hound; Ch. Pugville's Mighty Jim, a Pug belonging to the Pugville Kennels of Croton-on-Hudson, N. Y., the best toy, and Ch. Blakeen Bali H'ai, a Standard Poodle owned by the Putencove Kennels of Manchester, Mass.

Carey said after last year's show that he was afraid Bombardier might beat Storm out for the best-in-show honors. It is a rare day when a Bloodhound goes best among the hounds. Therefore, Bombardier goes to the head of the class as the pre-show choice.

Standard Poodles are popular these days, so Bali H'ai rates No. 2 of the favorites. But poor little Mighty Jim doesn't stand much of a chance. Toys just don't win at Westminster.

In addition to these three, nine other dogs who finished in the first four in the six groups will be back.

Wilhelm, Relief Ace, Signs With NY Giants

NEW YORK, Feb. 6 (AP) — Hoyt Wilhelm, the New York Giants relief ace, signed for the '54 season today. No salary figures were announced but it was estimated he will receive about the same as last year, a reported $12,500.

Wilhelm, 30-year-old righthanded pitcher, had a 7-8 record with the Giants last season, appearing in 68 games and 145 innings, all on relief. He had a fine earned run average of 3.04, best on the Giants' staff. In 1952 as a rookie he led the league with a 15-3 won-lost record and a 2.45 earned run average.

Eligibility Rules Have Wide Variations In Conferences

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6 (AP)—Where can a college athlete start playing varsity sports when he's a freshman and still be playing when he's a graduate student? Why, the Southeastern Conference.

Where can he play as a freshman only if his school has a male enrollment of less than 750 and if it supports teams in eight different sports? The Eastern College Athletic Conference.

Where can he be declared permanently ineligible if his coach has brought him a dinner in the good restaurant across town instead of the hash house by the campus? The Pacific Coast Conference.

Such major variations in eligibility rules were brought to light in an Associated Press survey stemming from the recent mild furore over the University of Kentucky basketball team. Kentucky, apparently, just discovered that its post-graduate stars, still eligible under Southeastern Conference rules, wouldn't be allowed to play in the National Collegiate A. A. tournament. And a lot of people just discovered that the SEC allowed grad students to play.

The NCAA, like virtually every major conference, limits varsity competition to three seasons within a five-year span. And, like most of them, it rules out anyone who has completed his undergraduate work and is eligible for a college degree.

The South's three major conferences—the Southeastern, Atlantic Coast and Southern — don't have that last stipulation. If a boy still is in college it's okay with them as long as he hasn't used up his three years of eligibility. Of these three, only the Southeastern still permits freshmen to play on varsity teams, but that goes out Sept. 1. Boys now in school who competed as freshmen still will be able to play for the fourth season.

Because the 100-college ECAC includes a lot of very small schools, it has a special rule that permits freshmen to play for colleges whose male enrollment is less than 500 and for colleges under 750 if they support at least two fall, three winter and three spring sports.

The ECAC also includes the influential Ivy group, which does not allow freshman to play and counts any year of scholastic ineligibility against the three years of competition allowed.

The Border Conference permits the use of freshmen and a couple of others have minor exceptions to the general rule.

There still are a good many ways in which an athlete can stick around for a fifth year to use up his eligibility, but nearly every conference would frown on deliberately failing a course if they could prove it was deliberate.

The Big Ten, for instance, has found that more than 50 per cent of students need more than four years to take a degree so it defines "satisfactory progress" for an athlete as leading to a degree in five years. But any "flunk" renders an athlete ineligible for Big Ten competition.

The Big Seven considers a four-year course as "normal" and requires an athlete to pass 24 semester-hours of scholastic work, 60 per cent of it with grades of "C" or better, each year to remain eligible.

That figure of 24 semester-hours—or 36 quarter-hours—seems to be the standard for conferences which set up definite rules concerning minimum scholastic requirements. But about half the major circuits leave it to the individual colleges to decide what constitutes "normal progress."

The major conferences are almost unanimous in requiring that transfer students put in a year of residence before they're eligible for athletics. But only the Big Ten applies that rule to junior college graduates who go right into a four-year school. Several conferences rule that an athlete who has signed a grant-in-aid agreement with one institution never can be eligible to play for another school in the same circuit.

The rules on recruiting and financial aid to athletes show the widest variations and usually brings the severest penalties. Hence the matter of the dinner mentioned previously.

A customary Pacific Coast Conference penalty for a recruiting violation is to fine the school and declare the athlete ineligible to compete for the offending institution. And it has ruled that "entertainment" of a prospect—like a dinner—must take place on or adjacent to the campus.

Mantle Leaves Hospital After Knee Operation

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Feb. 6 (AP)—Mickey Mantle, New York Yankee star outfielder, left Burge Hospital here this afternoon on crutches after the second operation on his right knee last Wednesday.

Mickey, who is 22, was met by his 17-year-old twin brothers, Ray and Roy, to return him by motor car to his home at Commerce, Okla.

Mantle will be on crutches for about two weeks and will return to the hospital for treatment two or three times a week but expects to be able to leave for the spring training camp at St. Petersburg, Fla., March 1.

In the meantime Mickey will be forced to limit his activities to avoid strenuous exercise.

His last operation was to remove a cyst from the back of his right knee, the same knee from which a torn cartilage was removed last November.

Warsaw Cagers Edge Hughesville By 61-57 Score

The Warsaw cage team was hard pressed in a basketball game in Hughesville Friday night but went on to edge the Wildcats by a 61-57 score in the final PBCAA tilt for both teams.

The Hughesville team led up to the middle of the third quarter but their failure to connect with the charity tosses enabled the Warsaw Club to forge into the lead. The Wildcats held a ten point lead at one time but failed to hold it.

Warsaw was accurate from the free throw line, scoring 25 points by that route. Hughesville netted 25 field goals and Warsaw tallied 18, but the Wildcats could only score seven points by the free throw route.

The Warsaw scoring was led by Bonner with 21 and Teeters with tallies, while Ringen, Karrick and Nicholson led the Hughesville attack with 18, 15 and 14 points respectively.

The Warsaw girls were no match for the powerful Hughesville volleyball team and were defeated by a score of 40 to 10. This closed the second consecutive season for the Hughesville team without a defeat.

PBCAA Tourney Begins Monday; 17 Teams Entered

The Pettis-Benton County Athletic Association conference basketball tournament begins Monday night at Green Ridge High School, with eight boys teams and nine girls teams competing.

Ordinarily there are nine boys teams, but Warsaw withdrew to enter the Tournament of Champions at Springfield.

Last year the preliminaries were held at Green Ridge and the finals at Sacred Heart High School in Sedalia, but this year the whole tournament is being held at Green Ridge.

At a conference meeting Saturday to arrange the schedule, the Lincoln boys were seeded first, while the Hughesville girls received the same nod. Next in line for the boys are Houstonia, Hughesville and LaMonte, and for the girls, Cole Camp, Houstonia and Green Ridge.

Four games each are scheduled for Monday and Tuesday, five each for Wednesday and Thursday and three each for Friday and Saturday, a total of 24 games.

Northside Association Backs Legion Baseball, Hears Annual Message

The Northside Citizens Association voted Friday night to give financial support to Clay T. Henderson Post No. 98 in its junior baseball program after its commander, Charley Sheppard, told the organization of the program's purposes and its effectiveness in assisting youth.

The regular business meeting of the citizens association was held in the American Legion Hall and was presided over by Ellis L. Smith, vice president.

Ira Cason, park and recreation committee chairman, reported on future prospects of the baseball diamond and grandstand for Hubbard Park.

At the close of the meeting, O. O. Lawson, the association's president, presented his annual message on the state of affairs in the community. He said that the success of the Northside in meeting its United Fund Drive goal was an example of progress in increasing citizenship.

He commended Chairman Dr A. R. Maddox for sparking th drive, the Rev. D. L. Hardiman, good will chairman of the association and chairman of the women workers in the United Fund Drive, for their efforts.

Lawson also thanked Prof. Beverly Foster for his work in leading the polio fund drive in the Northside.

In speaking of the association's work, Lawson said, "I think each and every one of us can point with pride to the fact that this is the first time that the North Side has ever had an organization of this type, where each and every citizen is privileged to meet on problems affecting every one of us."

Telephone Group Holds Bake Sale For Dimes March

A sum of $50 was turned over to Scott Webber for the March of Dimes fund for the management, personnel and employees of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company by Miss Mary Jane Williams, of the Sedalia Unit, Local No. 6301, and Mrs. Genevieve Watson, chief operator, Saturday morning.

The money was the proceeds from a benefit sale of cakes, pies candy and coffee, with the company furnishing the coffee and the others in the organization donating the food for the bake sale.

The idea was that of Miss Williams and Mrs. Watson who engineered the entire project. From 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. the telephone employees bought things from the bake sale booth which was on the third floor of the building. It was Mary Jane's day off, so down she went at 7 a.m. and got things ready. Serving began at 8 a.m. and she was a busy person all day long, selling coffee and all the good things to eat that everybody brought. She worked alone until about 4 o'clock, but she thinks the whole thing was worth what she put in it, because it was for a worthy cause. The others think their big contributions to the success of the benefit sale were worth it, too.

Earns Better Names

An Indian is not limited to one name all of his life. His birth name is used until he wins a tribal name. This is given to him by a chief, and he must accept it. However, he is given many chances to imrove his standing, and each additional feat of bravery brings him a better name.

Students believe that the making of glass is at least 5,000 years old.

Style Show Will Be For Their Benefit—

Cerebral Palsy Children Have Nursery School 1 Day Weekly

These three little girls, Cynda Rash, left, four year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Rash, 1517 East Seventh; Barbara Becker, center, three year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Becker, 1823 East Ninth and Margaret Hancock, 20 months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Hancock, 1501 East Ninth, are all cerebral palsied children.

This picture, taken at the little nursery school which was started last November, was a problem to take, because if it is hard to get a group of small children to sit quietly for a few minutes. It is even harder when they have cerebral palsy, and little Barbara, who never wants anybody to sit by her, kept slipping out of her chair and trying to get away.

The mothers of these three little girls have begun this nursery school as the first step toward helping their children. They take turns going once a week and Mrs. Macy Moree, speech specialist, and Mrs. Gregory Connor, field representative, work with them.

It isn't always easy to get together once a week, either. Once they had to call a meeting off because one of the children had a severe cold and another time one of them had mumps. They try to prevent any illness, because illness sets back the cerebarl palsy child.

The main concern of the nursery school at present is getting the chldiren acquainted. These children need sociability, and the parents are asked to take them places. Being with normal children, all boys, along to the nursery school. Barbara has two older brothers and each of the other two little girls have an olded brother. Although they do not seem to learn to play too well with their own brothers, the other little boys play with the other little girls without seeming to realize that there is something different about them.

From this have come wonderful results even in the short time, and now a program is being set up for them.

The little Becker girl, who had some grape juice, began to make a lot of noise over a glass of jelly on the table. She thought it was grape juice and she wanted more.

The mothers can see the difference in their children since they have started in the nursery school, which is one hour each week. The children sleep better and are happier when thye bring them home. Later they will try to have two days a week for the nursery school as the children progress.

This is just a part of the program which is being undertaken by the Cerebral Palsied Association. A school with special treatment for the children and a clinic are something else that the association, of which most active members are parents of cerebral palsied children, are trying to get started in Sedalia.

In an effort to help this organization go forward with its program, the Beta Tau Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi will have a style show and card party at the Convention Hall, Liberty Park, on Friday, Feb. 12, the proceeds to be turned over to the Cerebral Palsied Association.

No Apple For Teacher!

OMAHA (AP) — An apple for the teacher?

Omaha school officials say the custom seems to be dying out in many schools. One school man explained "children like to bring things to school but we encourage them to bring things that will interest other members of the class."

A science teacher could recall only one instance when she got an apple as a present. But she did get other "presents," including a salamander, caterpillars, a raccoon's feet, snakes, rocks, shells, bats, tadpoles and a fish's skeleton.

Sedalia Square Dancers Get In the Swing for First Festival Here This Month

To Calls and Accompanyment of Joe Lewis, One of Nation's Ten Top Square Dance Callers and Instructors, More Than 100 Couples Recently Enjoyed an Evening of Swinging Their Partners—Their Festival on Feb. 27 Will Attract More Dancers Than Can Attend

Ten Callers Will Be Here, Some from Out State, to Lead the Square Dance Festival

The almost three hundred members of the Sedalia Square Dance Association are getting all set for the biggest square dancing event this city has ever seen—the first Square Dance Festival. It will be held at the Smith-Cotton High School cafeteria on Feb. 27.

An afternoon and evening event, the Festival is expected to attract hundreds of out-of-town couples as well as all the local dancers until the hall will be filled to overflowing.

Tickets are now available and the only difficulty with the sale is expected to be the howls of the late-shoppers who find they are too late. Of necessity, the crowd will have to be limited so the ticket sale will be held to the number who can be accommodated.

Ten callers will be on hand to lead the Festival dances, for no one person would have voice enough to hold out for the many hours the ladies and gents will be swinging their partners and promenading.

Recently the Sedalia dancers, and several from other spots over the state, got warmed up for the big day with an evening of dancing to the calling, and accordion playing, of Joe Lewis, Irvin, Tex., who is rated as one of the top ten callers in the United States.

Joe, squeezing a tune out of his music box, called out the steps as more than 100 couples took over the S-C cafeteria floor. He lived up to advance billing as one of the best and provided one of the most enjoyable evenings the Sedalians have held at home.

Just returned from his second trip to Australia, Joe told of the square dancing there. It has only caught hold in a couple of cities, he said, but the masses throng to the dances. He told of calling for a crowd as big as 3,000 and also of a week's attendance of 90,000 at his classes.

Employed by a large department store, Lewis went to the Land Down Under to teach them the folk dancing that has become so popular in America. He made his first trip two years ago and the second this fall, returning just before Christmas after an eight week stay.

For the Festival, Jess Hyatt of Kansas City will be the emcee. He is president of the Kansas City Callers Club, and will do some of the calling, too, along with the others, most of them from away. Donald Donath, president of the Sedalia Square Dancers Association, and a good caller in his own right, will also do some calling.

A special feature of the afternoon session will be a period of instruction by Dena Fresh, Mission, Kan., who has written several couple dances and is recognized as an expert instructor for couples.

Besides the Festival, the local group has a number of other special events upcoming. They include these callers to be here on the dates named: Ed Wenski, Kansas City, Feb. 19; Orville Essman, St. Louis, March 5; Wally Andrews, Kirkwood, March 12; Harold Ford, St. Louis, March 26; Ed Gilmore, another of the top ten, Yaciapa, Calif., April 13; George Mason, St. Louis, April 24.

Formed two and one-half years ago, the association is now led by Donath with Damon Hieronymus as vice-president; Floyd Priddy, treasurer, and Kenneth Anderson, secretary.

Hooks Whale, Sees Two Others Collide, All Within Half-Hour

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—The skipper of a fishing boat yesterday told of hooking a whale on a fish line and witnessing a collision between two other whales, all within the space of 30 minutes.

Harold W. Hanson, skipper of the Lucky II, said he was fishing at the edge of kelp beds offshore when one of his hooks caught either a part of the lobe of the whale's tail or became entangled in the mass of barnacles that encrusted the mammal's side.

Hanson said the whale surfaced, spouted and then headed south at full speed, snapping the fishing gear.

The fisherman said he then sighted two other whales bearing down on his small boat, but they suddenly swerved and crashed into each other head on.

He then got out of the area as fast as the Lucky II could go.

Police Find $3,083 Hidden on Man Caught

CHICAGO (AP)—Detectives found $3,083 in currency stuffed in the pockets and one shoe of a 60-year-old man they arrested last night.

"Don't let my wife know about this money," Orval Schlatter, of nearby Whiting, Ind., told Sgt. James Fitzgerald. "I want to buy an automobile."

Fitzgerald said Schlatter could give no reason for stealing a box of candy and a bottle of mineral oil from the store. He was held without charge.

Preceding the ceremony, Mr. Steinmeyer and Mr. Leonard C. Ehlers lighted the candles.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin and chantilly lace, trimmed with seed pearls. Her only ornament was a double strand of pearls, a gift of the groom. She carried a white prayer book, topped with pink carnations tied with streamers.

Miss Elsie Ehlers was her cousin's maid of honor and her gown was of nile green taffeta with an overskirt of nile green net. Her corsage was of yellow carnations.

Miss Wilma Harms, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid and her gown was of pink taffeta with a pink overskirt of net. Her corsage was also of yellow carnations.

Mr. Virgil Walker, Kansas City, served as best man and Mr. Marvin Miller, Kansas City, was groomsman. Mr. Melin C. Potter, Peoria, Ill., and Mr. Olaff Schlesselman, Lincoln, were ushers.

How to Patch Broken Nails

BY ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor

Just when you want so badly to be perfectly groomed, it will happen: A run will pop, a pimple will blossom or a nail will break. One would think these little disasters could sense a party coming.

Should a broken nail threaten your party poise, teen-agers, you can make it appear as good as whole. You can find kits for this purpose at drug stores and cosmetic counters.

All you need do is saturate a piece of the tissue that is provided with the solution and tuck it under the break with an orangewood stick. Tear the tissue from the booklet since a ragged torn edge is less apparent than a cleanly cut one.

After the patch has dried thoroughly, apply a base coat and then your polish. By applying your base coat freely, you help to make the patch waterproof.

The tissue and solution can also be used to reinforce a fragile nail that threatens to break. For this condition, tear off a wedge-shaped piece of tissue, and trim the wide end to correspond with the tip of the nail. Saturate with solution and lay it flat on the nail. Have rounded end extended about an eighth of an inch beyond nail edge. Smooth with moistened finger tip.

Now turn your finger over and apply solution to expose edges of tissue. Turn tissue inward over nail edge with orangewood stick that has been dipped in remover. Press firmly to inner surface of nail.

Ancient chairs almost invariably had arms and it was not until toward the close of the 16th Century that smaller types became common.

Refreshments were served, carrying out the Valentine theme.

Invited guests were: Mrs. Charles Dilthey, Mrs. Tony Edwards, Mrs. Ed Brummett, Miss Anna Lee Harvey, Mrs. Lindy Wilson, Mrs. Ralph Klein, Mrs. Eugene Pressley, Mrs. Jerry Iuchs, Mrs. Tommy Bast, Mrs. Gerald Deal, Miss Lillian Staley, Mrs. William Reed and the honoree, Miss Rose Marie Reed.

Don't Hurry Buying Girdle

BY ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor

The most neglected items in many women's wardrobes are their foundation garments.

Yet, when chosen with care and cared for, they will return excellent service. They will be comfortable as they work wonders with your figure.

Look to yourself if your garments do not wear well and feel like torture chambers. Do you take time to be properly fitted? Do you buy two at a time so that frequent rests and sudsings can prolong their lives?

And have you found a conscientious corsetiere whose advice you can rely on? She can help you to make the right selection, provided you allow her sufficient time to do her job.

For example, when trying on a girdle, one should walk in it and sit in it to determine the fit. Bend over to see whether it pulls in too much at the waistline. Nausea is not the price to pay for waist - trimming.

You will find that you will get most satisfaction if you build up a foundation wardrobe. This might consist of two sturdy girdles or all-in-one's for every day; one or two lighter ones for sports and a more fragile garment for dress wear.

And before making your purchase, try your clothes on over the new undergarments. This is especially helpful when you are undecided about several garments. How you look fully clad in the final criterion.

Low Prices Mark New Furniture

1954 Chicago Show Accents Comfort In Contemporary Styles

BY KAY SHERWOOD
NEA Staff Writer

CHICAGO — The homemaker's problems and purse are the center of a flattering amount of attention from furniture designers and manufacturers.

New designs shown at the recent International Home Furnishings Market here offer to spruce up the home, solve special decor problems and be easy to maintain whether our pocketbooks are flat or fat.

As a matter of fact, some of the best designs I saw were aimed at moderate incomes and average families. You'll see in stores this spring less emphasis on tricks and gadgets and more on practical, handsome design.

You'll also see less flashiness and more attention to fine workmanship and details of hardware and upholstery. Emphasis is placed on wider use of a variety of materials and colors and designs that can blend in any interior.

I was glad to see materials such as plastic laminates, brass, steel, stone, leather, iron and glass used with such versatility. Cabinets, for example, in one low-priced group, are made entirely of melamine laminate (a rigid, tough plastic) in a tawny finish.

These cabinets, finished on all sides, are designed to be stacked as room dividers, spread out as wall storage or putt ogether to suit a special need.

The same laminate is used for the wide variety of tables in this series, including a game table with built - in checkerboard. Framework for chairs and tables in the line is ebonized wrought steel.

Pulling design inspiration from early Quaker furniture, another low-priced group injects a contemporary note to the simple, sturdy lines by tapering legs and curving brass hardware. Hard rock maple, with a warm brown finish, is used for the desks, tables, bedroom chests and headboards.

Yielding not an inch in elegant appearance to more expensive cousins, another outstanding group in hard rock maple features buffets and servers scaled down to fit smaller rooms and finished on all sides so that they may be used as room dividers.

Tapered legs, slender wood drawer pulls and sliding cabinet doors lacquered white give these pieces lightness without sacrificing roomy storage space.

White and black-lacquered finishes, which because of improved techniques are easy to keep gleaming, makers say, crop up all along the price scale.

Walnut and cherry in warm-toned finishes, birch, mahogany and hard rock maple are popular. Deeper - toned finishes are dull and hand - rubbed to show off the graining.

Upholstered couches and chairs are so deep, so soft, that they're an open invitation to sleep. Fine upoistery materials in silk, nylon and linen, sometimes shot with metallic threads, add beauty to the comfortable furnishings.

Colors hit the eye, brightening the rooms—blues from clear turquoise to deep purply tones, pinks of all shades, melon tints, and green and gold brighten the rooms.

Your Wardrobe
by Frances Sagaloff at Sage's

The new spring coats are the talk of the town. Rough textured fabrics, of course, are much in demand and look well with your suits and dresses. Solid colors lead the parade; however, there are some tweeds and a few plaids being shown. Nearly every wanted color is available with few exceptions, black being one. White is important and can be worn from now on through summer. About lengths—that is the exciting news. Real short briefs that look smart and give an air of real elegance to any outfit. They have a tuxedo type front and shorter sleeve that is smart with the longer glove. Of course finger tip lengths are the main lengths being shown, with a sprinkling of long coats. Of course, ORLON COATS are new, smart and practical, which makes wearing a pastel coat a real pleasure. Be sure to look at them, because they are washable.

Mrs. Talmadge Admits She's Country Girl

ATLANTA, Feb. 6 (AP)—"I'm from the country. Everybody knows it so there's no point in trying to be something I'm not," says blonde Betty Talmadge.

This sounds like a smart thing for the wife of a governor who draws loyal support from the rural "wool hat boys" of Georgia to say. But Mrs. Herman Talmadge isn't talking politics. A woman of sincere warmth and informality, she means every word.

Not even the most vigorous opponents of Gov. Herman Talmadge find much to say against his attractive wife.

Her friends often use the words charm and simplicity to describe Betty and lately the word capable, for she has become a successful business woman. She sells country cured hams—17,500 of them last year.

Her husband says his 2,500-acre Lovejoy farm wasn't much of a financial success last year, that he'd realized only about 1½ per cent interest. His wife, he adds, is the money maker.

Betty gives him a lot of the credit because "Herman encouraged me to start the business and gave me the money. He's the gambler in the family and I'm the conservative."

She began her ham-curing business on a small scale but it has grown so that she just hired two salesmen. A woman who has worked with her from the start keeps the books and supervises the curing when Betty can't be at the farm. And there are four other full - time employes.

But Mrs. Talmadge still buys the hams herself and makes sure they meet her rigid specifications. She says she can do anything necessary to get them ready for market.

A friend, Mrs. David Rice, wife of an Atlanta restaurant owner, says of Georgia's First Lady:

"Betty is one of the hardest workers I know. She doesn't stand back and wait for someone to do things for her. She sews beautifully, makes a lot of her own clothes, slipcovers and draperies and she can cook.

"In addition, she is unaffected and seems to know how to handle awkward situations."

Mrs. Rice says this lack of affectation extends to the Talmadge boys, Gene, 11, and Bobby, 8.

She recalls a time friends took the children to a celebration at the Atlanta airport. When they came home, Gene rushed in, popping with enthusiasm, and gasped:

"Daddy, we got to sit in the reviewing stand. And, we met the mayor of Atlanta!"

The boys go to a public school in Atlanta. They were enrolled only after Mrs. Talmadge had a promise from their teachers that they would not show them any partiality. Neither of the children has ever had a bodyguard.

Inevitably, they've had some extra attention but the few times they've indicated they might be something special, level - headed Betty Talmadge has taken them down a peg. When it's necessary, she doesn't hesitate to use the switch. ....

Betty says she "isn't much of a clubwoman. I don't have time because I travel a lot with Herman on his speech-making tours."

Except for two big parties when the legislature is in session, the Talmadge entertaining is informal and spur-of-the-moment. Betty says her friends like it that way.

Betty recently turned 30, her husband is 10 years older, and ruefully admits it was as hard for her to pass that milestone as it is for most women. Another thing she shares with her sex is a calorie consciousness. Between - meal snacks, she says, are her downfall. Asked how she finds time to shop, she spends nearly every weekend at the farm, she laughed and said:

"If I have the money, I find the time."

Girl Fails to Catch Measles In Fight Against Kidney Fault

JENKS, Okla. (AP)—Little Peggy Jane Coy still hasn't come down with the red measles to which she was exposed in an effort to combat her kidney ailment.

But, her mother, Mrs. Floyd Coy, reported yesterday the child will be exposed again in four or five days "if we can find another case of the measles."

A few weeks ago physicians treating Peggy decided she might better cope with nephritis if she could develop a case of red measles.

Cases of that type of measles were scarce, so a radio appeal was made. It was heard by Mrs. Dorothy Carter of Coffeyville, Kan., whose 3-year-old daughter, Winthris, had them.

So, 19 days ago, Winthris was brought here. She and Peggy were placed in the same bed and played together for about an hour.

'Court Martial' Makes Big Hit on Broadway

NEW YORK — (AP) — Broadway has a habit of snapping back just when things are beginning to sag in the box office.

A new example is the hit drama "The Caine Mutiny Court Martial," Herman Wouk's skillful dramatization of one section of his 1952 Pulitzer Prize-winning novel. The show, with Henry Fonda, John Hodiak and Lloyd Nolan in the leading roles, is the biggest box office smash in town.

The dramatization puts across the exciting story of a group of well-meaning men who took over a destroyer-minesweeper when the commanding officer folded up.

There is excitement, anxiety, tenseness and a whole gamut of emotions in the stark courtroom drama. Credit goes not only to Wouk but to the all-male cast.

Agriculture Dept. Doesn't Know Date Of Price Announcement

WASHINGTON (AP)—Agriculture Department officials said today it is not yet known when Secretary Benson will announced producer support prices for dairy products for the new marketing year beginning April 1.

The department is committeed to support prices at 90 per cent of parity until that time. It is carrying out the support guarantees by buying butter, cheese and dried milk at prices designed to reflect 90 per cent of parity for milk and butterfat used in making these products.

Present farm law requires the secretary to support dairy prices between 75 and 90 per cent of parity.

Benson recently told a congressional committee that in view of large stocks of dairy products held by the government under support operations, he did not see how he could justify continuing supports at the 90 per cent level for the new marketing year.

Says Delaying Bricker Amendment Decision Will Not Ease Politics

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. George (D-Ga) said today that any move to avoid a Senate showdown in this session of Congress on the controversial Bricker treaty-power amendment would merely "perpetuate the issue" in politics.

George, who told the Senate yesterday President Eisenhower cannot defend his opposition to a provision giving Congress a check on executive agreements, said in an interview he is going to continue to work to get a constitutional amendment passed. He has offered his own version.

The Senate, in recess over the weekend, will resume debate Monday on a proposal by Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) with the understanding it will not attempt to reach any votes on the measure until the week of Feb. 15.

Drug Store vs. Cafe War Over Coffee

ST. ANTHONY, Idaho (AP) — There's something of a cold war over coffee under way in St. Anthony.

The Thrifty-Way Drug Store advertises in its window that coffee is 5 cents a cup, with refills free.

And two doors away the sign in a cafe window reads:

"Coffee still 10 cents, but aspirin and all other drugs in stock free."

Beneath the cafe sign are the drugs "in stock:" one box of aspiran, one box of bandages, a bottle of antiseptic.

Roosevelt Careers Threatened By Jimmy's Marital Mix-up

By Drew Pearson

LOS ANGELES—This is the story of Jimmy Roosevelt, a boy of great promise, whose political life and that of his brother Franklin now hang in the hands of a wrathy woman and her bitterly anti-Roosevelt attorney.

It is the story of a man with his father's charm, considerable ability, who has made mistakes, plenty of them, but who started to build a promising political life for himself in California. It is also the story of two brothers who, in a sense were political rivals, one with an ambition to be governor of New York, the other to be governor of California; both of which ambitions may be wrecked by Jimmy's martial troubles.

Running through the story also is an overtone of intrigue by certain political enemies who see in Jimmy's "woman trouble" a chance to kill off two men who might come close to or even enter the White House.

Jimmy Roosevelt's marriage with Romelle Schneider can be divided roughly into two categories. The first years, according to their friends, were a period when he made every effort to make their marriage successful. The second period includes the last four years or so, when it was apparent to friends in California that the Roosevelt marriage was pretty well on the rocks.

Suicide Attempt

This period began when Jimmy ran for governor of California and when Romelle became ill. The incident was reported as a mistaken overdose of sleeping pills. For a time, Romelle received treatment at a Santa Monica hospital, and for a time Mrs. FDR, Sr., had her own specialist give the treatments. But Romelle rebelled on the ground that her religious training did not permit such treatment.

It was just before the 1950 campaign for governor of California that Romelle threatened to publish the now-famous 1945 letter involving Jimmy in intimate relations with nine women. This letter, it now develops, had been hanging over Jimmy's head for some time; and shortly before his campaign for governor his wife demanded that he do three things or she would publish it.

The three things were that he take her abroad; that he transfer one of his partners in the insurance business to the eastern part of the United States; and that he deed to her one-half of his insurance business.

Jimmy complied with all three, taking his wife to Europe before the campaign for governor started, and also transferring his business associate, a former Marine Corps veteran to whom Romelle had taken a violent dislike.

During the gubernatorial campaign that followed, Romelle was a good sport, accompanying Jimmy on most of his trips, though toward the end she got irked at Helen Gahagan Douglas, the Democrate candidate for the senate, and stayed at home.

As in every marital dispute, there is a lot to be said on both sides. And this dispute would have attracted little attention, certainly would not merit discussion in this column, were it not for its political reverberations—not only in the Democratic Party in California but in regard to the next Democratic governor of New York.

Tall, handsome, with his father's famous charm, Jimmy Roosevelt has always attracted women. Like the Prince of Wales before he married Wally Simpson, women literally threw themselves at Jimmy. In a way, that was how he met and married Romelle Schneider, then a nurse at the Mayo Clinic.

It was an unfortunate marriage from almost every point of view. First, FDR and Mrs. Roosevelt, Sr., were terribly fond of Jimmy's first wife, Betsey Cushing. Second, Romelle was completely unfamiliar with the fast-moving political-social set in which Jimmy traveled. She came to Washington and did her best, but always felt out of place. This aroused her suspicion and jealousy.

A beautiful girl, Romelle did not understand the background of political and social atmosphere in which Jimmy had lived all his life. And it is quite conceivable, as Jimmy now says, that casual flirtations or even acquaintances with the nine women named in his letter might have been magnified in Romelle's mind into something else.

Finally, Romelle was a Catholic and Jimmy a divorced man. In the eyes of her church, therefore, she was not married, and as the years went on this preyed on her conscience heavily.

The three children were brought up as Catholics, but Romelle used to tell them, sometimes tearfully, that she could not join them in some of the church ritual because she was not acceptable to the church which she loved and under whose guidance she had been reared.

As to why Jimmy ever signed the famous 1945 letter, not even his best friends quite know. One reason, they say, was that Jimmy believed that if he yielded to his wife's very sincere ideas on repentance and a purge of the soul, then they could begin all over again. Probably, also, the controlling factor was that Jimmy knew his father in February of 1945 was in extremely bad health and that his life might easily be snuffed out by an emotional strain or disappointment.

Jimmy was the apple of his father's eye. For a time the elder Roosevelt had brought Jimmy to Washington as his executive assistant, to have him nearby and train him in the ways of government. Knowing how keenly disappointed his father was at the first marital break-up, Jimmy knew that news of another would be too much. So he signed—and had the threat of that letter hanging over him for nine years.

Before Jimmy decided to run for Congress, he conducted a survey of the 26th California congressional district. Naturally, he was concerned as to what effect his divorce would have on his race for Congress. The survey showed that 11 per cent of the voters in that district would not favor a divorced candidate, but 84 per cent said it would make no difference. And, of Catholic voters, only 14 per cent felt that a divorce mattered in a congressional candidate, while 81 per cent believed it should not matter.

The survey also showed that Jimmy could win the race for Congress easily. The district had just been gerrymandered by the Republican legislature in Sacrameto in order to include as many Democratic votes as possible, hereby making other congressional districts easier for the Republicans to carry.

In fact, Jimmy still might be able to win—if he wants to stick it out. If he does, however, he will probably kill his brother Franklin's chances to be governor of New York.

And, despite the political rivalry between the two boys, the last thing the elder Roosevelt wants to do is diminish his brother's chances. Actually, they may be seriouly hurt anyway. But it is almost certain that, because of this, Jimmy will bow out.

Is Air Power Alone Enough? Still Need Adequate Troops

President Eisenhower has given Congress many tough morsels to chew on this year, but none is tougher than the question of what to do about the nation's defense.

Long before the President's budget descended on the lawmakers' heads, White House sources had made plain Mr. Eisenhower's intention to shift the military balance importantly toward air power and atomic weapons.

Administration officials say this determination was arrived at initially by the Joint Chiefs of Staff, in the light of their "new look" at America's defense needs and capacities.

Thereafter, the President and his National Security Council approved the shift. The budget figure for defense is an expression of this new policy, according to administration authorities. In other words, the projected $4 billion cut in defense spending is an outgrowth of the change.

Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey has denied that the administration imposed an arbitrary spending ceiling on the Joint Chiefs and then ordered them to cut their cloth to fit.

Nevertheless, some responsible Democrats and other public figures are raising questions about the new military policy which need to be answered to the full satisfaction of all thoughtful citizens.

Greater dependence on air power and atomic force means less on ground armies. But how much less? Will we ultimately pull all our ground units back from Europe and the Far East, or will we keep them strategically deployed in alliance with our foreign friends?

The answers here are important. For if we should pull out of Europe or Asia, then the question follows: What do we do to support our allies if they are attacked in a small, limited way?

In other words, what if Bulgaria, Russia's puppet, should assault Greece, our ally under the North Atlantic Treaty? Do we then send our long-range planes aloft to drop A-Bombs on Moscow?

Some analysts declare that we will not be properly set defensively if we are equipped only for all-out atomic war against Russia and can not fight the small, localized outbreaks which are a favored Communist technique. That was fundamentally our position before the Korean war alerted us to more flexible defense in 1950; to that extent, the "new look" would not be new at all.

The administration's strategy for dealing with military actions of less than all-out character needs to be spelled out thoroughly to Congress.

That the new program comes to Capitol Hill with the recommendation of a President who happens to have been a lifelong soldier is an impressive argument for it. But that does not mean it should be taken on faith alone. Matters of security are too vital to be taken blind.

Languages Unlimited

One of the criticisms leveled against Americans who live abroad or travel extensively is that they make too little effort to learn the languages of other nations.

There seems to be something to it. Americans evidently try to drag America with them wherever they go, creating a little enclave founded on their own language and customs.

Europeans, whatever their limitations in understanding America, more often than not know the English language and one or two others besides their own.

Now, however, the imaginative Encyclopedia Britannica has come up with a new kind of dictionary that may make it easier for Americans abroad to get acquainted with life beyond their own circle.

The dictionary—useful for about 80 per cent of the Western world—carries all words in seven different languages. They are arrayed in parallel columns, so a man who has found his own word can tell in a flash what the counterpart is in French, German, Italian, Spanish, Swedish and Yiddish.

A mere mechanical prop like a dictionary can't do the whole job. But it certainly is a sound contribution to better international understanding.

The Thinkers

Mayor Orville Hubbard of Dearborn Mich., is a real innovator in politics. He has directed his administration to closet themselves in "office solitary" for a half hour each morning just to think. During this precious interval they are to take no phone calls and see no one.

Hubbard feels that if this goes on long enough the fellows may come up with some ideas. It's an interesting experiment, and we hope the reporters will look in on Hubbard after he's had a little chance to test his plan.

Privacy has become a rare commodity in the modern age. A lot of things are being blamed on the lack of it. Brother Hubbard's little laboratory may show us what are some of the forgotten fruits of sitting alone in a room with only the sound of one's own brain at work.

Manners Make Friends

On foot he has the manners of a gentleman. But the minute he gets behind the wheel of a car he starts to act more like a road hog. He hurries pedestrians by sounding his horn; glares at any driver who annoys him; passes on hills, etc.

When yop buy note paper for yourself or for a gift, don't be tempted by the kind that is decked out with flowers, one ready-made initial or any of the other fancy types you'll find displayed.

Choose a plain paper and you'll be sure it is in good taste.

Johnny Sinn Sees Children Discovering Radio Once More

By HAL BOYLE

Many children growing up in the television era now are discovering and enjoying an antique, old-fashioned form of home entertainment their parents have appreciated for some years. It is called radio.

"The kids are going back to radio," said Johnny Sinn. "There are some programs they like better on radio because they can imagine the scenes better than if they are shown on a screen."

One of his own children for example, prefers hearing the horse opera, "Cisco Kid," on radio to watching it on television. This intrigues Johnny beyond the normal interest of a parent in what takes his kid's fancy. The "Cisco Kid" happens to be one of many famous characters who walk, talk or gallop for Johnny on either radio, television or both.

He is a top man in the destiny of radio as well as television, and sees a prosperous future for each, although he predicts radio will become the more localized medium.

You probably never heard of John L. Sinn. But he has thought of you, wherever you are. He has studied you for many years harder than he ever studied his primer in school. He wants to know how to make you laugh and cry—and afterward to go out and buy things.

At 38 he is one of the bigger figures in the world of entertainment, and one of the least known to the public. But you'll hear more of him. He might look like the guy who lives next door to you, if you are lucky enough to have a pleasant neighbor with a receding hairline, dark eyes, a wide but determined mine, and a sensitive willingness to hear you brag before he says what he knows to be so.

Johnny travels about 100,000 miles a year between New York, Timbuktu and Hollywood. He and his partner, Fred W. Ziv, produce—at the moment—23 weekly radio and 12 television shows. They have 500 employes, their own Hollywood studio.

Two years ago their gross gulp was estimated by "Variety" at 20 million dollars annually, perhaps a modest figure today when their programs are on at least 1,500 of the nation's 2,500 radio outlets and some 145 television markets.

Some of the programs Johnny Sinn never has to worry about getting tickets to are "Boston Blackie," "Mr. District Attorney," "Yesterday's newsreel," and "the Hour Stars." They are his.

He recently signed Red Skelton in a three million dollar deal. Among the other stars who work for him — no movie studio could match the list—are Guy Lombardo, Humphrey Bogart, Lauren Bacall, Tony Martin, Ginger Rogers, Dick Haymes, Robert Montgomery, Adolphe Menjou, and Tyrone Power.

Yet only 18 years ago Sinn quit college in his junior year to take a $25 a week job in Radio Station WLW in Cincinnati.

"It was a fantastic job," he recalled. "In those days in radio you did everything. You wrote shows, produced shows, announced news—anything that had to be done. And it was all wonderful."

How did he leap from $25 a week to a partnership in a 20-million-a-year-or-plus firm? It began with a gimmick, or, as they say in the advertising field, an idea.

Johnny thought up a program for a local bakery firm called "The Freshest Thing in Town," that caught on well. He and Fred Ziv, owner of an advertising agency, decided to try to get other bakeries in other towns to buy it. The idea worked.

"We just went on from there," Sinn recalled. "As we brought in more money, we created more programs, hired bigger stars, sold our shows to more stations. We put them on tape in radio, film in television later.

"This meant neither the star nor the station was tied to a network's schedule. The actor could work when he wanted to, the station could put on the program any time it wanted to, and the sponsor had the same choice.

"We've learned famous names help start a new program, but only quality will keep it going. Good shows start with a good script. People are always hungry for better entertainment, and that requires better writers. The writer is always at least as important as the performer."

Johnny, who started off by writing his own shows, then said: "Gee, you know the biggest decision in my life was whether to quit college before getting my degree. But it was exactly the job I hoped to get after I finished college. I see I did what I had to. What would you have done?"

Well, personally, I stayed in college and got two degrees. But I didn't tell Johnny. A guy pulling in 20 million dollars a year has enough worries without me adding to his feeling of inferiority.

Looking Backward . . .

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

At the YMCA a meeting was held preparatory to raising funds with a goal of $10,500 for that association, it being the same amount that had previously been alloted through the Community Fund, which had been abandoned.

— 1929 —

A plea was made calling attention to the need of feeding quail when snow and ice cover the ground, as had been the case in recent days. District Deputy Game Warden Leland Coontz announced the state would provide the feed for distribution in the emergency.

— 1929 —

The Sedalia Federation of Labor, in its annual election, named these officers: Oscar Templeton, president; Emmet Sullivan, vice president; A. T. Williams, secretary-treasurer; P. J. Bergmann, sergeant-at-arms; A. T. Williams, Paul Kirner and C. King, trustees.

— 1929 —

C. F. Scotten, county superintendent of schools, sent instructions to the teachers in the various schools of the county on spelling contests. Winners were to participate in a district contest at Warrensburg. The winner goes to the state-wide meet at Jefferson City.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Lee C. Redmond, assistant superintendent of telegraph supply department of the Missouri Pacific was in Hoisington, Kan., on company business.

— 1914 —

The Rev. E. H. Williamson, Sedalia, preached at the Christian Church at Dresden Sunday and there were two conversions.

— 1914 —

P. S. Warren, stockman residing south of Sedalia, shipped a carload of fat cattle to the St. Louis market. They were among the choice offerings at the stockyards there.

— 1914 —

Skating was permitted at Liberty Park lake, which had its ice covered with light snow and was a little rough. The skaters soon had many of the rougher spots smoothed out.

Scout Anniversary

'Twas a voluntary movement
Just 44 years ago
That started a job of building
That seemed to spread and to grow.
And all of the little Boy Scouts
Who were in the first troops then
Grew, like those who followed,
Into good, high-typed men.
And those who started Scouting
Deserve the highest praise
For 'twas they who had an idea,
An idea that really pays.
These men believed in boyhood
Enough to be volunteers
To give of time and of service
Out of their busy careers.
They planted self reliance,
Initiative, courage, skill,
Qualities of good citizens,
All this they tried to instill.
Thus the Boy Scouts incorporated
In February, 1910.
Many have given their services
To training youth since then
They've opened the door to boys
Of every religion and race.
They have made each community
Always a better place.
For the teaching of Scouting
Works just on a simple plan
That future strength of America
Lies in tomorrow's man.
Always going forward,
Always leading the way.
Building, guiding, helping,
The boyhood day by day
These are the Boy Scout leaders
Since the year 1910
Molding the lives of youngsters
Into the right kind of men.

Come A-Smokin'

by Nelson Nye

THE STORY: Grete Marratt, a fugitive, has learned that Clem Ryerson, owner of the Wineglass ranch, is the man he has sworn to kill. Naome, a girl Marratt once had rescued, is Ryerson's daughter. Marratt is masquerading as Luke Usher, a man he resembles. Luke disappeared 15 years ago after accusing Ryerson of the murder of Jake Usher, Luke's father. Chuck Crafkin, Wineglass foreman, fears exposure of thievery of the Usher cattle. After learning that Naome obtained canceled checks given Crafkin when he sold the cattle as beef to Beckwith, the Indian agent, he sends Tularosa, a murderous hireling, to take the checks from Naome. Meanwhile, Clint Gainor, another rancher who believes Marratt is Usher, has demanded at gunpoint that Marratt deed him the Usher ranch.

MARRATT never was afterwards able to recall what notion he was worrying when he came into sight of the old Usher ranch house. His mind had been filled with thoughts aroused by Clint Gainor. But the moment he saw the pair of hard-breathing horses standing spraddle-legged before the front porch all the hardness ground into him by experience was apparent. His eyes turned bleak, all the bones of his face standing out like castings.

Those broncs had been pushed and, though grass stood hock deep all over the yard, neither one of the pair had dropped its head to start browsing. If this visit were hostile it didn't look like they'd have left those horses in plain sight. But the men weren't in view and, at this stage of the game, one wrong move could put him out of it for keeps.

Leaving his animals in the brush at the side of the road, Marratt drew old Jake's pistol and cut around to the barn, moving silently and swiftly. He came in from the rear and moved through it warily without discovering anyone.

Easing off his boots he stepped into the kitchen. They were in the front room, two open doors beyond and, while he couldn't yet see them because of the angles, he caught the sound of ragged breathing.

"Give 'em here!" growled a voice; and there was a quick rush of bootsteps punctuated by a gasp and the sound of something ripping. He caught the slap of hands against flesh. Spur rowels rattled above another rush of feet.

Marratt was at the hall door half crouched to go through it when a black-haired girl with the dress half torn off her caromed into his arms, knocking the legs out from under him. He went down hard. His gun flew skittering across the floor. He shoved her aside, rolling to hands and knees just as the man in pursuit of her, crashed into him.

• • •

IT fortunately wasn't his bad side which sent the fellow sprawling, but it was plenty bad enough. It knocked him halfway around and left him gagging for air.

They reeled to their feet at about the same time and the man brought around what was left of a chair in a whistling arc that only missed braining Marratt by inches.

He came alive fast then, struck hard as he could at the man's right shoulderblade.

Tularosa slammed into the wall.

Those shoulder blows had slowed the man up but he came within an ace of getting his gun out of leather before Marratt got to him. Even so the gun came out; all Marratt could manage was to deflect the man's aim. That first slug, grazing Marratt's shoulder, brought down the stovepipe in a cloud of soot. The second plowed into the ceiling, but Marratt knew his luck wasn't going to last forever.

He couldn't break the man's hold, couldn't wrest the weapon away from him—the bony gun fighter seemed to have the strength of a tiger and his pistoning left kept battering Marratt's head with a punishment that was reducing Marratt's vision to red fog. There was a ringing in his ears. There were butterflies in his stomach. He finally got his left fist wrapped around that six-inch barrel and, forcing Tularosa's gun arm above his head, attempted to drive the man wallward.

• • •

ONLY then did he commence fully to realize the real nature of what he was up against. It wasn't just that his fellow appeared to have anchored himself to the floor like a leech or that he seemed endowed with three times the strength any man so built could normally count on. A foul stench came out of him, sour with the acrid reek of marijuana—it rose from his sweat like the fumes off a bog.

His grip, rimed with sweat, was beginning to slip and the clubfooted gunman, suddenly abandoning those bludgeoning blows at Marratt's head, directed all his monstrous energy into a series of maneuvers designed to break Marratt's hold on that gun-weighted wrist. He writhed and twisted like a sackful of snakes but, with his arm above his head, he couldn't get enough leverage. He gave backward a step and was carried back another by the thrust of Marratt's weight. He lost his balance and went over, taking Marratt with him, throwing a knee up as he fell.

Marratt thought that knee had gone through his stomach, that he was impaled upon the thing with his backbone folded down across it like a dish cloth.

The operator setting the recipes for the Recipe Section looked up at a co-worker and said: "Here is a recipe for vinegar pie, but there isn't any vinegar in it."

"What's wrong with that", said the co-warker, "You make catsup, but you don't put any cats in it."—H. L.

THE YOUNG PEOPLE had a new refrigerator and they had it turned to about where they had always turned their old one, but this new refrigerator was different.

When the young wife opened it the first evening to get her food out for supper she found all her food had frozen. The shells of the eggs peeled off just like hard boiled eggs and there was the hard white and yolk, just in a big frozen ball. The milk was frozen and sticking out of the bottle and everything else she had in there was just the same way.

The fruit jello was frozen, too, she said, but that was all right, I like frozen jello.—HL

THE WOMAN WOKE UP, looked at the clock, saw it was time to get up and awaken her daughter. She finished dressing and started downstairs to get breakfast.

"I will be glad when it isn't so dark when we got up", she commented to the daughter. The daughter sleepily went on dressing without paying too much attention to the darkness.

At the breakfast table, when the breakfast was about half through, the daughter began to really wake up. She looked out the window into total blackness.

"It is awful dark this morning, isn't it?" she said.

"Yes," replied the mother, "It must be cloudy".

But even so, it was much darker than usual, the daughter thought, and she turned to look at the kitchen clock. The mother looked, too, and they both laughed.

They were a whole hour ahead of time, in fact a little more than that, because it was only a quarter 'till six.

The day was Saturday, and the daughter over-looked the getting up an hour early, but when her mother told her to pay the telephone bill and to be sure to get down there in the morning because the office would be closed in the afternoon, she felt maybe her mother was plotting against her. She hurried down to the telephone office during the morning only to find the office was closed all day.

Well, the daughter really caught up for that hour's sleep she lost in the morning. She went to bed at 8 o'clock that night and slept until 8 the next morning.—HL

Fight Rages Over Employ Wire-Tapping

Editor's Note: Known spies are said to be free men today because important evidence against them was obtained by wiretapping and hence is inadmissable in federal court. How can we get around this legal loophole many criminals use to their advantage—or do we want to? Here's the whole story of America's private wrestling match with wiretapping, which many experts say is completely contrary to the Constitution and its guarantees of personal liberty.

By DON WHITEHEAD

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 (AP)—Wiretapping: police-state menace or weapon to protect our liberties?

Some say it's sneaky snooping, a threat to constitutional guarantees of privacy, no matter who does it or how he does it.

Others say it's a police technique that should be legalized and evidence obtained with it admitted in federal courts against spies, saboteurs and similar offenders.

The dispute has built up slowly through the years into an issue that already has begun to explode with sound and fury in Congress. There seems to be no easy compromise.

The idea of wiretapping—pictured by many persons as a sort of keyhole peeping into bedroom secrets—doesn't please even those who favor its use. They realize the danger of abuses that could easily lead to blackmail, extortion and political espionage. They want wiretapping authorized only within tight limits bound by safeguards.

It's no secret that federal agents, police, even private detectives, have been tapping wires for a long time. Various states have their own laws laying down the rules for and against wiretapping.

The federal law controling wiretapping doesn't prohibit the act of wiretapping itself nor does it specifically legalize the act. The Justice Department has interpreted the law to mean that wiretapping itself is legal although evidence obtained by it is not admissible in federal courts. But you can get an argument on that interpretation of "legality."

For the most part, this has been a problem for each state to solve in its own fashion.

But there is the question also whether wiretap evidence should be denied to federal agents in helping them convict persons plotting against the security of the United States. Should ordinary rules of "fair play" and ethics apply in dealing with such people?

A wire can be tapped by attaching a portable 'phone to the telephone line of a suspect's home, office or apartment. This can be done either by a direct connection to the line—or by wrapping a coil around the insulated wire and drawing off the current by electrical induction. In either case there's only a slight loss in the volume of sound, and tapping is hard to detect without an instrument to check normal sound volume.

The administration has asked Congress to pass a law to permit the FBI under certain limits and safeguards — to use wiretap evidence against suspected spies, kidnapers and the like.

Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell has told Congress:

"There are cases of espionage presently in the Department of Justice, but since some of the important evidence was obtained by wiretapping the cases cannot be proved in court and therefore there will be no prosecution so long as the law remains in its present state."

In other words, Brownell seemed to be saying that spy suspects are walking the streets today untouched by prosecution only because wiretap evidence is not admissible in federal courts. And he wants the rules changed so he can use the evidence he found in the files when he took office.

The most notorious case of this kind, perhaps, is the strange case of Judy Coplon, the government girl convicted in 1950 of plotting to spy for Soviet Russia.

The U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New York said she plainly was guilty but set aside her conviction and 15-year sentence. Among other reasons, it held the government had failed to prove that evidence which convicted her had not been gained through illegal telephone wiretapping.

The Supreme Court refused to review the lower court ruling and Judy Coplon has never gone to trial again. She probably never will, Justice Department officials say, unless the government can use wiretap evidence against her.

There is no question the Coplon case has given ammunition to those who want to give the FBI limited wiretapping authority, coupled with a right to use this evidence in court.

Brownell has proposed these limitations:

1. Wiretapping would be restricted to investigations relating to national security or defense.

2. Wiretap evidence would be admissible in courts only when obtained by FBI agents.

3. No wire could be tapped without prior approval of the attorney general.

4. Wiretap evidence would be admissible only in criminal proceedings in federal courts.

But there is another side to the question, manned by those who look upon wiretapping as a police-state method potentially far more dangerous to American liberties than any evidence wiretapping could produce.

The late Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes once called wiretapping "a dirty business" in a dissent to a Supreme Court opinion which held wiretapping was not a violation of constitutional guarantees against invasion of privacy.

Sen. Wayne Morse (Ind-Ore) has promised to filibuster against the administration proposal to legalize wiretapping.

The government itself has taken an on-again-off-again policy toward wiretapping in the past 30 years. But since 1931 all attorneys general have favored some form of legalized wiretapping, under safeguards.

Back in 1924, Atty. Gen. Harlan Fiske Stone—later chief justice of the United States—adopted a policy forbidding wiretaps by Justice Department personnel.

FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover in 1928 issued a manuel of rules and regulations for his agents which said:

"Unethical tactics: wiretapping, entrapment, or the use of any other improper, illegal, or unethical tactics . . . will not be tolerated by the bureau."

In those days Communist infiltration and espionage had not become a problem. There was no cold war, and spies were more important as a subject for fiction writers than congressional investigators.

But in 1931, Atty. Gen. William D. Mitchell issued an order permitting supervised wiretapping. The FBI manual was changed to read: "wiretaping: telephone or telegraph wires shall not be tapped unless prior authorization of the director of the bureau has been secured."

As late as 1940, the records indicate, J. Edgar Hoover wasn't a disciple of indiscriminate wiretapping. He said in a letter to the Harvard Law Review that wiretapping was archaic and inefficient, "a definite handicap or barrier in the development of ethical, scientific, and sound investigative technique."

At that time Robert H. Jackson was the attorney general. He turned thumbs down on wiretapping as a means of obtaining evidence. Jackson felt that under certain safeguards it should be authorized in cases such as kidnaping and extortion but that this could not be done legally until Congress changed the existing laws.

Then, in May 1950, President Franklin D. Roosevelt sent Jackson a secret memorandum saying in part:

"You are, therefore, authorized and directed in such cases as you may approve, after investigation of the need in each case, to authorize the necessary investigating agents that they are at liberty to secure information by listening devices direct to the conversation or other communications of persons suspected of subversive activities against the government of the United States, including suspected spies. You are requested furthermore to limit these investigations so conducted to a minimum and to limit them insofar as possible to aliens."

Seven months later the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor. The United States was at war. Atty. Gen. Jackson told a Senate committee: ". . . one would not think of providing that a police officer shall not stop a suspect who is driving an automobile on the highway, and yet today the criminal and the spy may use the highways of communication without restraint or even surveillance."

By this time FBI chief Hoover had taken another look at the situation. He told a House subcommittee: "I have always been and am now opposed to the use of wiretapping as an investigative function except in connection with investigations of crimes of the most serious character, such, for example, as offenses endangering the safety of the nation or the lives of human beings. I also feel that world development . . . have increased the gravity from the standpoint of national safety of such offenses as espionage and sabotage . . ."

During this time the FBI was tapping telephones. It has continued the practice throughout the years although there still is a question whether it is legal.

The law regarded as the controlling statute in recent wiretap cases is Section 605 of the Federal Communications Act of 1934 which says: "No person not authorized by the sender shall intercept any communication and divulge or publish the existence, contents, substance, purport, effect or meaning of such intercepted communication to any person." The penalty can be a $10,000 fine or two years imprisonment, or both, for willful violations.

The administration's interpretation of this statute has been that wiretapping itself is not illegal that the illegality comes when a message is intercepted "and" disclosed.

As for the states, they have their own wiretap laws. In many cases these are contradictory in effect to the federal law.

The Justice Department itself has not yet made an exhaustive study of state wiretapping statutes, but on the basis of articles appearing in law reviews it has grouped the states roughly into three categories:

1. States with statutes which in effect forbid only damaging telephone wires, or interference with telephone services. They are Georgia, Indiana, Maine, Maryland, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Texas, Vermont and West Virginia.

Some state courts have held that wiretapping was not illegal as long as there was no physical damage to the telephone wires or interference with service.

2. States with one or more statutes which forbid wiretapping: Alabama, Illinois, Louisiana, New Mexico, Virginia, Arkansas, Iowa, Massachusetts, North Carolina, Washington, Colorado, Kansas, Montana, North Dakota, Connecticut, Kentucky, Nebraska and Tennessee.

In some of these states there are exceptions in the law. For example, Louisiana permits police tapping "to detect crime." And Massachusetts permits tapping if there is written authorization of the state attorney general or a district attorney.

Some of these states forbid "unauthorized" or "unlawful" tapping but don't specify where the authority lies. These states are listed as Tennessee, Arkansas, Iowa, North Dakota, Kansas and Nebraska.

States having one or more statutes forbidding wiretapping and also regulating the use of disclosure of information obtained by wiretapping. These are Arizona, California, Delaware, Florida, Michigan, New Jersey, Ohio, Oklahoma, Utah and Wylming.

Also grouped in this category, but with more limited regulations, are Oregon, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, South Dakota and Washington.

New York is the only state with a statute legalizing wiretapping under court permission. Such permission is easy to get. If any enforcement officer with a rank of police sergeant or higher presents an affidavit to a court swearing that a wiretap will help him get evidence in a crime that is being committed, the permission usually is granted.

Most arguments about wiretapping sooner or later come around to the U. S. Supreme court decisions in the Olmstead and Nardone cases.

In the Olmstead case federal agents broke up a million-dollar bootleg syndicate in the state of Washington largely by wiretap evidence. The defendants, Roy Olmstead and others, carried the case to the Supreme Court on the grounds that the wiretapping was an infringement of their constitutional rights under the Fourth and Fifth amendments.

The Fourth Amendment provides protection against unreasonable search and seizure. The Fifth provides no person "shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself."

But the court ruled in 1928 that the defendants' constitutional rights had not been infringed and denied the argument that the wiretap evidence was inadmissible because it had been obtained unethically.

The Olmstead decision seemed to establish wiretap evidence as admissible and wiretapping as constitutional.

The Federal Communications Act of 1934, with its restriction against "intercepting and divulging" telephone conversations, apparently blasted that, however.

But then came the Nardone case. This was another liquor case — involving smuggling by Frank Carmine Nardone and others. The defense lawyers in this instance didn't base their appeal on constitutional rights but on the statutory prohibition against "intercepting and divulging" telephone conversations.

This time the Supreme Court reached decisions which in their effect at least tossed overboard the Olmstead decision. They added up to this: wiretap evidence is not admissible in federal court because it is prohibited by the Federal Communications Act.

The court majority followed the same line of reasoning in the Coplon case as it had in the Nardone case. Thus, for all practical purposes, the Nardone case still is controlling.

Several bills have been proposed to legalize wiretapping and wiretap evidence within strict limits. The one which has received most attention is the bill backed by Rep. Kenneth Keating (R-NY).

The Keating bill would legalize wiretaps in the field of security by the FBI and the intelligence agents of the armed services under rules laid down by the attorney general. But advance permission for wiretaps would have to be given by a federal judge.

The Justice Department doesn't like the Keating bill, largely for this reason:

If wiretap evidence is legal only with approval of a federal judge, then the evidence already in the Justice Department files can never be used because it was obtained without any such authority.

Keating and other lawmakers have displayed uneasiness about placing this wiretap authority solely in the hands of the attorney general without any other safeguards. There are some fears that one day an attorney general might use this power to establish a vast political espionage system. s

LESSONS IN GOVERNMENT MADE EASY—Rep. Craig Hosmer, Republican of California, is supposed to be the first U. S. congressman to send a cartoon report home to his constituents instead of the usual letter. After reading a committee report which he thought was too complicated he decided to turn cartoonist in order to show voters back home the way laws are made. In the background are originals of two pages he mailed to 7500 people. Hosmer is now working on a series of sketches about the judicial and executive branches of government.

Syria's Boss Has Survived 26 Death Tries

He has come through no less than 26 assassination tries and plots on his life in four years.

The diminutive dictator can thank Lady Luck—and a particularly well - informed intelligence service. Most of the conspiracies against him have been discovered ahead of time and nipped in the bud.

But there have been occasions when bullets actually nipped his coattails and only luck saved him.

Shishekly achieved power by force, and his enemies have tried the same technique to unseat him. He reportedly had a hand in the assassinations of his strong men predecessors—Zayim and Hen-Sami Hennawi, both killed in 1949.

The President learned a lot from his predecessors. Zaim and Hennawi attempted to rule Syria directly and were much in the public eye. Shishekly tries to rule behind the scenes, remaining as inconspicuous as possible and thereby offering a small target.

From 1949 to late 1951 he was army chief of staff while the country was governed by a Cabinet responsible to an elected Parliament. In December 1951 he set up a military dictatorship but declined the top spot in favor of his former teacher, Ten. Fawsi Se... who became chief of state.

He is quick to spot possible rivals for his job. As soon as an army officer begins to look like strong man material, he's shifted to an obscure post of little influence away from the capital.

One by one, the President has removed from power the group of young officers who supported him in the coups which catapulted him to his present position. One army colonel was "promoted" to head the Syrian navy. Since Syria's navy is almost nonexistent, the colonel took the hint and resigned.

Shishekly keeps his intelligence service under his own personal direction. His agents are reported to keep a close watch on every army officer of any significance from morning to night. In some urban centers, the President's agents can be found in almost every hotel lobby, bar or cafe.

Only last year, the intelligence service broke up a well-advanced army plot. While the President was in Cairo visiting Egypt's President Mohammed Naguib, the plotters planned to shoot him at the airport when he returned to the Syrian capital.

But the dictator's intelligence service worked so well, he was listening to tape recordings of the conspirators meetings while he was still in Cairo. The would-be assassins were promptly arrested and a full-blown purge of the army brass was under way by the time Shishekly got home.

Even though he has been successful in thwarting military opposition, he still has to worry about civilian resistance, which has been more pronounced of late. Small but active political parties already have banded together in anti-Shishekly pacts at home. A "Free ...ria party" across the border in ...aq, headed by a former Syrian army major, is sworn to throw Shishekly out, and Communist agitators are active in riots against the President.

Shishekly has zigged and zagged at just the right times so far. His enemies are banking on the law of averages.
